Weapons Declaration Agreed

Permanent Ban Is Being Sought

. . . On Nuclear Arms

Camp David, Md. (AP) — President Nixon and Soviet Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev have reached agreement on a new declaration designed to spur a permanent ban on nuclear offensive weapons, authoritative sources disclosed late Wednesday.

The signing is tentatively set for Thursday. At the same time, Nixon and Brezhnev may announce an accord for joint cooperation in peaceful uses of atomic energy.

The finishing touches on the guidelines for the now-recessed SALT II talks in Geneva were reached by Nixon and Brezhnev in summit conferences held in a mountain retreat here.

The agreement could rival in importance the accord reached in Moscow last spring when Nixon and Brezhnev held their first summit. Those talks produced permanent limits on some nuclear defensive weapons and a temporary limited ban on some offensive weapons.

It was understood the new guidelines reached here were mostly general in nature. But they are intended to accelerate the suspended technical talks covering such complex systems as multi-targeted missile warheads.

The document would not be a treaty, but is considered essential to get the stalled Geneva talks moving again.

A companion pact would pool U.S. and Soviet research in the field of peaceful uses of nuclear energy, including fast-breeder reactors and controlled explosions.

Nixon and Brezhnev met late into the evening Wednesday and planned to reconvene Thursday.

With Nixon and Brezhnev as they talked until 3:15 p.m. EDT about strategic arms limitations were Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security adviser, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Then Brezhnev and Nixon left the lodge for a ride in the new Lincoln Continental limousine that Nixon gave the Communist leader as a gift. Brezhnev was at the wheel as they drove around the Camp David grounds for about 10 minutes. An interpreter was with them.

The talks resumed in Nixon's lodge shortly after 5:30 p.m. with Kissinger and Dobrynin attending. Rogers and Gromyko met separately to discuss the Middle east.

Spokesman said Nixon and Brezhnev had expanded their discussions to include the forthcoming Helsinki conference on European security and prospects for a mutual reduction in the military forces maintained in Europe by the United States and the Soviet Union.

In a brief break, Brezhnev performed again for photographers, this time wearing a blue windbreaker with a Camp David seal and his name on it. "It's all the President's doing," he said. "He gave it to me."

Growing serious, the Soviet leader said of the summit generally, "The results will be good without question. The talks are in the interest of both our governments and our peoples. I am satisfied."

Spokesmen said they planned to talk into the evening, with the principal subject being arms limitations.

Ziegler was asked whether an agreement was expected by Thursday.

"We cannot announce any signings that may take place tomorrow because at this moment we are not 100 per cent sure," he replied. But he added quickly that "we do anticipate that possibility."

Zamyatin reinforced this view and then went on to stress the Soviet Union's interest in strengthening economic ties with the United States. He said the two countries were talking in terms of 10 to 15 years.

"Our country is ready to conclude with the United States large scale deals based on mutual advantage," he said. "We can reach agreement on extensive economic co-operation spanning a period of decades."

"We have no intention of getting anything in the United States free of charge and neither do we intend the United States to get anything free of charge . . . we stand for mutual advantage of trade."

In Washington, meanwhile, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai S. Patolichev signed an agreement designed to prevent double taxation of Americans working in the Soviet Union and Russians in the United States. This fifth agreement during summit week depends upon Senate ratification.

In the Middle East, one of the world's hot spots, both the United States and the Soviet Union have supplied arms and general support to contesting Arab states. Washington also is the principal backers of Israel.

Knowledgeable officials believe an eventual agreement will depend finally on a direct accommodation between Israel and its neighbors. Still, the United States and the Soviet Union can exert considerable influence.

White House Account. . .

Dean Withheld Info From Nixon

©The New York Times

Washington — A White House account of President Nixon's conversations this year with John W. Dean III charges that Dean, despite constant pressure from the President, withheld from Nixon all information about White House involvement in the Watergate burglary and cover-up until March 21.

On the other hand, a summary prepared by lawyers on the Senate Watergate Committee of their interrogation of Dean last Saturday contains Dean's assertion that Nixon knew earlier about the cover-up plot.

Much of the evidence against the President that Dean gave the committee staff is hearsay, according to the summary. But he told of some direct conversations with the President in which aspects of the cover-up had been discussed.

Dean's account did refer to a request to meet with Nixon last March 21 "to tell the President all he knew" about Watergate, but the committee's summary did not indicate if Dean had done so.

There were some new or more detailed allegations by Dean, a central figure in the Watergate case. They included the following:

—That the President, in a conversation with Dean last September, directed an effort to block a Watergate investigation by a House committee and urged Dean to prepare to "take care of" reporters unfriendly to the White House.

—That Charles W. Colson, a former White House special counsel, and John D. Ehrlichman, the former domestic adviser to the President, had sought from Nixon permission to promise executive clemency to E. Howard Hunt Jr., one of the Watergate conspirators. Dean said that he had "heard this" from Colson and later this spring had a "discussion with the President about the clemency offer.

—That Dean had been instructed by Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman, the former White House chief of staff, to enlist the aid of Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, the deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, in covering up the Watergate conspiracy. Dean's account was that the White House aides said that Walters "owed his allegiance to the White House," but that the CIA official had declined to help.

—That Nixon had told Dean that the late director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, J. Edgar Hoover, had advised the President that he "had been bugged" in the 1968 campaign, and that Nixon believed the White House should use the information to its advantage at some point.

Center Backers Say Climate Right

. . . Brandeis, Miller & Paine Officials Seek Zoning

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Contending that the climate is right for another shopping center for Lincoln, applicants for a change zone to permit a shopping center at 27th and Old Cheney Road outlined their plans before the City-County Planning Commission Wednesday.

Attorney Chauncey Barney, representing the developers of the proposed center, Erickson Development Co. Inc., told the commission that it seemed strange to contend that the market for such an area isn't there when the individuals who have run retail stores for 100 years say it is.

Referring to the management of Brandeis and Miller & Paine, who have announced they will locate at the 27th and Old Cheney location if the site is approved, Barney said the land is right and the possibilities are there.

Sam Marchese of Brandeis said he was appearing to confirm the store's committment to the new location and to also reconfirm its committment to downtown Lincoln.

He said Brandeis feels that the proposed shopping center that the 27th and Old Cheney Rd. site will enhance the City of Lincoln as a trade area.

John Campbell of Miller & Paine said there is an economic need for the proposed center in Lincoln in order to preserve its position as a major retail center.

He said Miller & Paine has been in business in Lincoln for 93 years and will have been operating 97 by the time the proposed center is completed and "I think we have come to learn a fair amount about Lincoln."

Proposed plans call for an approximate 840,000 square foot shopping center including 50,000 square feet of enclosed mall.

At least four major tenants including Brandeis and Miller & Paine will be among the tenants proposed to lease the space with mall shops slated in the two-story enclosed center.

The City Council has already deferred any action on two other proposals for shopping centers — one which gained Planning Commission approval and the other denial — until a study of the need for additional shopping centers is made.

Speaking out in opposition to the application for the change from A-1 Single Family to G-1 Planned Commercial was Pace Woods Jr., developer and single-family landowner in the area.

He urged the Planning Commission to support the recommendation for denial by Planning Director Douglas Brogden because the matter is "premature."

He said the application should be denied until there is a new comprehensive plan, new economic feasibility study and traffic study completed.

A petition from residents of the area was also presented opposing the application on grounds that a shopping center is not needed in the area.

Also heard Wednesday was a request for a change of zone from L Heavy Industry to K Light Industry to permit a 120-unit motel on Northwest 12th and Cornhusker.

The applicant, Virl B. Burd, said that the location is in the same vicinity of other motels and would help take care of the "tremendous crowds" coming to Lincoln for sports events. The planning director has recomended approval.

Another change of zone proposal heard Wednesday would permit the construction of a care home on the northwest corner of 9th and Sumner.

Russell L. Beighley and Laverna Filbert propose a one-story nursing home for Intermedicare Care I patients and the application has the sanction of the planning director.

Peron Returns Amidst Violence

BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA (AP) — Gunmen opened fire in the throng of two million that waited Wednesday to welcome Juan Domingo Peron back to Argentina. Scores fell dead or wounded, and Peron landed at another airport.

The police reported at least 13 dead and 250 wounded in the gunfire near Ezeiza International Airport, where the former Argentine president's chartered jet was to have landed. Doctors attending the victims said the death toll could go to 50.

Peron put down at a military air base several miles away after the flight from Madrid, where he has lived in exile.

He cancelled his public appearance. In a nationwide broadcast Wednesday night, he expressed sorrow over the clashes and said: "I give you a thousand apologies for not having had the opportunity to greet you personally."

Peron, 77, said he would hold a news conference Thursday to explain "the collaboration that I will lend to the government."

Sporadic shooting near the international airport continued after dusk as hundreds of thousands of Peronists started back toward the capital.

The new Peronist president, Hector J. Campora, said after arriving with the former Argentine leader that the fighting was started by "elements who are against our nation."

Two earlier gunbattles that left three persons wounded appeared to involve rival Peronist groups. Peronists in the crowd blamed a Marxist guerrilla group for the prolonged gunfire that spoiled Peron's peaceful return from 18 years in exile.

There was scuffling, and then shots were fired into the crowd from a clump of trees 300 yards from the speaker's stand. Peronist security guards returned the fire and charged into the trees.

Witnesses said some of the gunmen fled in cars, but others were captured and beaten to the ground.

Minutes later, other shots rang out and the fighting spread.

Police withdrew quickly from the area after the shooting broke out.

Peron was toppled by a military coup in 1955 after nine years of rule with dictatorial powers. He has been living in exile in Spain, and his followers wwere prohibited by the military from putting up a presidential candidate until this year.

This return to Argentina is his second in the last six months.

Food Crunch Coming?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration may be forced to decide soon whether to ration fuel or face a possible food shortage next winter.

Agriculture Department sources say there is a distinct possibility of a food crunch related to fuel shortages.

Tractors and combines are reported stalled in increasing numbers in Kansas and other wheat harvest areas.

Corn and soybeans, planted in poorly prepared fields because of severe weather last winter and this spring, are being threatened by weeds.

Unless farmers have enough fuel to cultivate crops this summer and to harvest them next fall, livestock producers will face shortages of feed and will have to cut back on the output of meat, milk and poultry.

No one is suggesting that a food shortage in the United States would mean starvation.

Dr. Manley Named Union College Head

Dr. Myrl O. Manley, former vice-president for student affairs at Andrews University, is the newly elected president of Union College. He replaces Dr. R. H. Brown, who will become director of the Geoscience Research Institute of the General Conference of Seventh-day-Adventists.

Dr. Manley has taught at Cedar Lake Academy in Vincent Hill School in India. He was president of Spicer College and of the Burma Union before going to Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Mich.

Dr. Manley states that he is impressed with the record of alumni of Union College in the world field, and also with the friendliness of the people in Lincoln.

Survey Shows Nebraska Youths Against Use, Legalization Of Pot

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Roughly 60% of Nebraska junior and senior high school students surveyed are against the legalization of marijuana, and approximately the same number said they would not use marijuana if it were legalized.

These findings are the preliminary results of a survey of 2,700 seventh through twelfth graders in 50 schools across the state conducted by the University of Nebraska Bureau of Sociological Research for the Nebraska Commission on Drugs.

The survey revealed that the thinking of the majority of youths across the state follows their parents' generally "conservative" attitudes toward drugs, according to Jeff Kushner, the commission's executive director.

But, he added, the survey indicates some "significant" breaks in attitudes among younger persons from those of their parents.

For instance, 74% of the youths surveyed said that the lack of love and affection in many homes contributes to drug use and abuse among both youths and adults.

Significant Minority

In addition, a significant minority apparently doesn't view drug use as a problem the law should be concerned with. About 35% disagreed with the statement that drug users are criminals who deserve to be punished.

Yet, 52% said they felt that marijuana is not harmless, and 48% said penalties in Nebraska for drug pushers are not severe enough.

The survey also highlighted a division in attitudes towards liquor versus marijuana and their relationships to the law.

Approximately 45% of the youths said they had used alcohol more than 10 times, while only 14% said they had never taken beer, wine or liguor. Some 10% reported they had used marijuana or hashish more than 10 times, while the vast majority — 75% — said they had never tried them.

Stiffer Penalties

Half of the respondents said they favored stiffer penalties for marijuana users to discourage it, while more than half — 56% — were against stricter penalties for possession of liquor by minors.

The students were about evenly split on whether marijuana is less harmful than alcohol; 27% said they felt it is, whereas 20% said they disagreed. A sizeable segment was undecided.

A greater number apparently said they felt their elders were not exactly models when it comes to drug abuse; 37% said adults abuse stimulants and depressants more than youths.

And contrary to popular beliefs among parents, willingness to experiment with drugs does not make a student popular in school, according to the students. Roughly 69% refuted the social pressure theory.

Other answers included:

— 67% of the students said they believed that an individual should be able to endure temporary pain without resorting to the use of drugs.

— 43% said they agreed that heroin users usually start with marijuana.

— 48% said they felt youths who use drugs are generally emotionally immature.

— 47% said the regular use of marijuana results in an "I-don't-care" attitude toward home and school.

— 42% said they would be most likely to turn to a friend for help in solving personal problems; 34% said they preferred their parents; 5% said a religious leaders; 3% a crisis center; 2% a school counselor, and 1% a teacher.

Kushner said the study, which is not as yet completed, will be used by the commission to formulate a statewide plan to attack drug abuse.

Peron Returns To Argentina; Violence Erupts

(c) New York Times News Service

Buenos Aires — Ending 18 years of exile, Juan D. Peron returned to Argentina and promptly went into seclusion after violence broke out in a crowd of more than one million persons who had gathered to welcome him. President Hector J. Campora said the former dictator refused to address the crowd because "elements opposed to the country tried to distort" the public reception. (More on Page 1.)

W. Germany Re-Establishes Relations

Bonn — All but completing its efforts to re-establish formal relations with the Communist states of Eastern Europe, West Germany initialed a treaty with Czechoslovakia, implemented its treaty with East Germany and looked forward to negotiations with Hungary and Bulgaria. (More on Page 2.)

Brezhnev Bubbling With Friendship

Washington — It's amazing what a year and a little trip can do for a man's disposition, even Leonid I. Brezhnev's. Last year, during President Nixon's Moscow trip, he was restrained to the point of formality. Now, the Soviet leader has been bubbling over with such good fellowship that President Nixon called him the best politician in a room full of senators and representatives.

Reports Contradictory On Nixon

Washington — The Senate Investigating Committee has received sharply divergent reports about when President Nixon first knew of White House involvement in the Watergate burglary and cover-up. A White House account claims that John W. Dean III withheld all incriminating information from the President until March 21. But a summary of Dean's interrogation by committee lawyers contains his claim that the President knew about the plot earlier than that. (More on Page 1.)

Connally Denies Rumors

Washington — President Nixon's unpaid part-time adviser, John B. Connally, called a White House news conference to deny reports that he has been unhappy with his treatment and to confirm that he was leaving his post to travel and resume his law practice in Houston. (More on Page 2.)

Campaign Group Fined $3,000

Washington — President Nixon's campaign organization was found guilty of illegally concealing a $200,000 cash contribution from Robert L. Vesco. Though the committee argued the gift had been committed and effectively received before they new reporting law took effect and that it fell into a "misty area," between the old and new laws, the federal judge said he had difficulty "finding any doubt to shroud this in." The committee was fined $3,000, the maximum penalty (More on Page 1.)

Laird Tactics Investigated

Washington — Government lawyers described in court the circuitous route used by defense department aides to make inquiries for then Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird into a federal investigation of a Florida railroad. Laird has called the inquiries "routine." (More on Page 1.)

Rockefeller Scraps Bridge Plans

New York — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller ordered an end to all plans for the controversial bridge over Long Island Sound, a project he had sought for years despite growing opposition from residents and environmentalists.

2 Germanys, Czechs Ink Pacts Of Detente

BONN, Germany (AP) — Two treaty ceremonies brought West Germany closer Wednesday to ending cold war hostility with East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

The steps represented a double triumph for Chancellor Willy Brandt's Nobel Prize-winning policy of detente with his Communist neighbors to the east.

Brandt's government exchanged notes with East Germany to put their normalization treaty into force at midnight. And Bonn initialed a friendship pact with Prague providing for diplomatic relations and annulling the notorious 1938 Munich agreement wrung out of Czechoslovakia by Hitler.

The first treaty, between the two Germanys, makes it possible for both to join the United Nations. It provides for normal relations and greater human contact between the rival German regimes, including the opening of four new crossing points along the mined death strip border.

Brandt's special negotiator Egon Bahr said he was pleased that "after such a long road, a new chapter in the history of the two German states can now start with such a feeling of hope."

In the ceremony in Brandt's Palais Schaumburg chancellery on the Rhine River bank, Bahr exchanged folders of legal papers with his East German counterpart, State Secretary Michael Kohl.

This was the final step for implementing the treaty, signed in East Berlin last December and later ratified in both states.

The treaty does not remove the Berlin wall or the border dividing Germany since the defeat of the Nazi regime. But it provides for easing the human hardship of divided families, later detailed cooperation agreements and an exchange of "permanent representatives" similar to ambassadors.

The key provision of the treaty, hammered out after two years of talks, declared invalid the 1938 Munich agreement in which Britain, France and Italy permitted Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler to seize the Sudetenland, part of western Czechoslovakia.

This pact, which has come to symbolize the notion of appeasing an aggressor, was one of the steps leading to World War II. Until Wednesday, it had poisoned relations between Prague and Bonn.

Health Of Skylab Crew Mission's Big Surprise

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The big surprise of Skylab's long mission is how healthy the crew is, proving that man can "operate efficiently, well and happily in space," the astronauts said Wednesday in a news conference from orbit.

"I think I'm in as good shape now almost as when I left," said mission commander Charles Conrad Jr. after 26 days in space.

"Medically and subjectively what's been such a pleasant big surprise to me is how nice we feel," said Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin, the first physician in space and Skylab 1's science pilot. "We're able to get up in the morning, eat breakfast and do a day's work. I'm tremendously encouraged about the future of long duration flight."

Conrad, Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz answered newsmen's questions relayed to them by Mission Control during a morning news conference from space.

The spacemen afterward spent most of the day stowing aboard their command ship the harvest of scientific information gathered during their mission. They were packing the space ferry ship in preparation for leaving the orbiting laboratory and returning to earth on Friday.

During the news conference Kerwin cautioned that although the medical findings looked good, they were not complete.

FDA Proposes Warning Label On Feminine Hygiene Sprays

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration Wednesday proposed that feminine deodorant sprays be required to carry health warning labels.

The agency said it knows of no medicinal or hygienic value of the sprays, and would consider misbranded any product using the words "hygiene" or "hygienic."

Consumers and industry have 60 days to comment on the proposed regulation before the FDA makes a final decision.

During the last four years, the FDA and Federal Trade Commission have received 174 unsolicited complaints from women and physicians of itching, burning, blistering and urinary infections after the sprays were used.

The reports increased from 14 in 1969 to 20 in 1970 and 89 in 1971, then dipped to 51 last year.

The FDA proposal would require the following warning on the sprays:

"CAUTION—For external use only. Spray at least eight inches from skin. Use sparingly and not more than once daily to avoid irritation. Do not use this product with a sanitary napkin. Do not apply to broken, irritated or itching skin. Persistent or unusual odor may indicate the presence of a condition for which a physician should be consulted. If a rash, irritation, unusual vaginal discharge or discomfort develops, discontinue use immediately and consult physician.

The FDA is said to believe that the adverse reaction complaints represent only a small sample of those experiencing trouble. But the agency said they do not indicate a significant health hazard except possibly for 23 reports of infection.

For that reason, it said that the decision was made not to remove the sprays from the market.

A spokesman for Albert-Cluver Co., maker of FD5, said, "we are prepared to conform with any regulations they may propose."

The spokesman said the company does not accept, however, the FDA's finding that the sprays are of no medicinal or hygienic value.

Man Disturbs Gandhi Affair

TORONTO (AP) — A demonstrator approached to within a few feet of Indira Gandhi at a luncheon Wednesday and shouted: "Indira Gandhi murderer!" at the visiting Indian prime minister. Police dragged him away.

The man waved a placard picture of a dead Indian extremist leader as he shouted, officials said. Cabinet Minister Donald Macdonald said the man apparently was able to approach so near the head table because he was dressed as a waiter or busboy.

Connally Hopes To Quit Position

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally said Wednesday he hopes to leave his job as adviser to the President by mid-summer but he denied that his impending departure was due to any rift within the White House.

Connally's announcement was made at a White House news conference in which he covered a wide range of subjects, including the economy.

He said that the post-Phase 3 economic program should have "fairly firm controls in certain areas." He said that mandatory controls "might very well be placed on major industries where the greatest problems exist" rather than on some type of general price-wage freeze.

Connally called the news conference because he said that many misimpressions about him and his role in the administration had been reported in the press.

However, he puzzled newsmen by declaring, with reference to published accounts, "you have some leakers who are fairly accurate in what they are leaking to you."

One press account this week said that Connally planned to leave his advisory post because he had recommended that Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler be relieved of his duties but instead Ziegler was promoted.

Another report said that Connally thought the White House was "all screwed up" and that President Nixon had reacted cooly to his frank talk about the Watergate.

Connally also told newsmen that they "were not ever going to have a love feast" with Nixon.

But he said he thinks that Nixon "really wants some improvement" in press relations and "I hope you all do." At this time, Connally said, "I frankly feel that if he flew to the moon tomorrow you all wouldn't give him credit for courage but you would say he was fleeing out of fear."

New Postal Contract Provides 15% Boosts

WASHINGTON (AP) – Two Major postal unions reported tentative agreement Wednesday on a new two-year contract which sources said provided wage and benefit increases totaling 15 per cent plus unlimited cost-of-living increases.

U.S. Postal Service negotiators continued bargaining with two smaller unions representing nearly 90,000 workers on issues affecting their particular jurisdictions.

The new contract would raise postal salaries, now averaging about $10,000 a year, to more than $11,000 with some workers getting close to $12,000 plus whatever cost-of-living increases are provided, union sources said.

"I think it's an excellent contract," said Francis Filbey, president of the American Postal Workers Union, largest of the four unions with 312,000 members.

Both Filbey and President James H. Rademacher of the 195,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers said the pact would be submitted for ratification even if the two smaller unions refuse to go along with the national agreement. They predicted "overwhelming approval."

"If the membership ratifies the contract, it will be signed by the APWU regardless of what anyone else does," Filbey said.

The two unions still involved in talks with the Postal Service are the National Rural Letter Carriers Association and the Mail Handlers Division of the Laborers International Union.

The new contract is likely to result in higher postal rates next year with the price of a first-class postage stamp expected to go to 10 cents.

The ratification process is expected to be completed well in advance of the July 20 expiration date of the current contract, thus eliminating any chance of interrupted mail service this summer.

Sources said the agreement provides for wage increases of 43 cents an hour the first year and 20 cents the second year.

In addition, the Postal Services was said to have agreed to unlimited cost-of-living increases every six months but rejected union demands for geographic differentials to help workers in urban areas meet higher living expenses.

Under the contract, the sources said, management would increase its contribution to health insurance payments from 40 per cent to 55 per cent the first year and to 65 per cent the second year. The Postal Service, which now pays one-third of life insurance premiums also agreed to pay full costs in the final year of the contract.

TV Viewers Getting A Distorted Picture

(c) Newhouse News Service

Washington — The first clear-cut evidence of widespread distortion of what heavy television viewers really know about the world is starting to emerge from a University of Pennsylvania study.

The pilot project shows, for example, that Americans who watch a great deal of television including news programs — think they have more chance of encountering violence than they in fact do.

Influenced by seemingly-realistic TV fare, these viewers also over-estimate the U.S. population as a percentage of the world population, the density of the United States, the number of men in law enforcement jobs, the number of athletes and entertainers in real life and the number of court cases decided by a jury instead of by the judge.

George Gerbner and Larry Gross of Penn's Annenberg School of Communications, expect their project, part of a proposed longer-range study, will "represent the first clear-cut evidence of massive influence of television viewing and other media exposure upon public conceptions of social reality."

Their findings may appear to be simply what critics have contended for years. That TV presents a skewed version of the world — predominantly white, male and professional.

As a sidelight, they found that newspaper and newsmagazine readers have a more nearly accurate picture of the real world.

Gerbner and Gross want to continue their study to determine, among other things, what a child's world will look like 'given relatively little exposure to the complexities of the 'real world' and a steady diet of exposure to the world of television."

This TV world, they have discovered, "is mostly domestic, urban and contemporary. Foreigners make up 14% of its population. The fantastic and the implausible are more likely to occur far out in the country, or in other countries, than close to home. Wars, small towns, places of great wealth and poverty, and sparsely populated areas are more likely to be abroad than in the U.S."

'Poverty is funnier than wealth, even if it is rare once in a hundred settings and far away. Most of those employed in the world of television are professionals but most are also unmarried and in the prime of life. Business, government, entertainment, law enforcement and crime are the major occupations.

"Half of all people commit violence," they wrote, 'one-fifth perpetrate some crime, 6% kill someone and 3% are killed."

And TV viewers know it.

Group OKs Schlesinger Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee Wednesday approved the nomination of James R. Schlesinger to be secretary of defense.

Chairman Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said the vote was unanimous and that no opposition to the appointment is expected in the Senate.

Schlesinger, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, was confirmed in January as director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

In the defense post he will succeed Elliot L. Richardson, who was appointed Attorney General last month.

Pope Might Abandon Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI is reported ready to abandon the Vatican and St. Peter's Basilica, symbols of his claim to be supreme ruler of Christianity, if it would advance the cause of Christian unity.

The pontiff was quoted to this effect by the rector of a papal university in Rome.

The Pope was quoted as saying he would be prepared to move to the Lateran Palace, his see as bishop of Rome, but would never agree to abdicate as Pope. In his words, this would be 'against the will of Christ.'

The Rev. Antonio Maria Javierre, rector of the Salesian Atheneum, one of Rome's pontifical universities, said the Pope had made these points in a private conversation recently.

The gesture of leaving the Vatican for his diocesan headquarters would be a concession to Protestants and Orthodox who consider the Pope's assumption of supreme authority to be the greatest block to the return of Christians to a single church.

Many non-Catholic Christians have expressed willingness to regard the Pope as moral leader of Christianity because he is bishop of Rome, successor to the apostle Peter who was designated by Christ to carry on the faith. Peter was the first bishop of Rome and is believed to have died in Rome.

Father Javierre, 52, a Spaniard, related his conversation with the Pope to Salesian News, a publication of the Salesian Order.

Father Javierre quoted Pope Paul as saying:

"For you ecumenists, I represent the greatest difficulty, the biggest stumbling block — not as a man but as the pontiff, I know. I would be glad to remove all obstacles.

"There are no few among you who advised me to resign. But do you think this is the right solution? Can one be said to be a real theologian if he suggests as a solution that of going against the expressed will of Christ?"

Foreign Policy Dispute Hints Emerge In China

World News

By HENRY S. BRADSHER
(c) Washington Star-News

Hong Kong — Hints of a foreign policy dispute within the leadership of China have emerged at a time when a domestic conflict has apparently become sharper and may portend political trouble in Peking.

The new dispute, suggested in the last two weeks by conflicting attitudes over Vietnam, involves Premier Chou En-lai's policy of good relations with the United States.

The signs are that latent opposition to choosing the U.S. as a friend while continuing hostility with the Soviet Union has now begun to make itself visible. This sniping at Chou's line seems likely to be linked with those in China who contest the pragmatic economic policies being followed, which are also associated with Chou.

A major conflict is gradually surfacing between those who believe material incentives are necessary to encourage maximum production and those who adhere to chairman Mao Tse-tung's traditional line that incentives are a capitalistic corruption of the Communist system.

The underlying theme of the power struggle known as the cultural revolution was Mao's attack on 'capitalist-roaders' who introduced an incentive system in the early 1960's. After the cultural revolution and the fall in September 1971 of Mao's designated heir, Defense Minister Lin Piao, incentives are again widely used in industry and agriculture.

The economic question has a secondary question of the army's role in China today. Since Lin Piao's fall, the army has receded from the dominance it achieved during the cutlural recolution, leaving Chou's governmental apparatus in general control.

Lin's ousted group had preferred to leave an opening toward improving Soviet relations rather than placing all bets on friendship with the United States.

Sniping at the pro-U.S. policy became obvious in an editorial Sunday in the People's Daily, the Chinese Community Party newspaper.

It said the United States had violated the original January cease-fire agreement on Vietnam. This repeated a charge that another People's Daily editorial had made June 4, the day a top-level North Vietnamese delegation arrived in China.

During the visit, however, Chou and his deputies carefully avoided ever saying that the United States had violated the agreement. The North Vietnamese during their visit repeatedly made accusations of U.S. violations but China never endorsed this.

Mao has endorsed — he is even given credit for inspiring — the pro-American policy. But his long record of political maneuvering does not eliminate the possibility of his now cooperating with those elements who are suspicious of foreign policy in order to build up strength for a challenge to the pragmatic economic policy.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

What a fascinating world it is in which we live. Consider the present visit to the U.S. of Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. We read somewhere that an army of people in the neighborhood of 20,000 were busy in connection with the visit.

That is as staggering a figure as the national debt and it wasn't offered in jest. And what are all of them doing? Vast numbers of them are connected with security, including those who bolted down the manhole covers in the street along the path to be traveled by the Russian visitor in his trip to the White House.

Then, there was the gift committee. The exchange of gifts between Nixon and Brezhnev makes the average guy look like Scrooge. Maybe what we all need is somebody picking up the tab for us. Then we could all give Aunt Minnie a Honda for Christmas and a new house for the kiddies and a mink coat to the wife. If the old man played his cards right, somebody might present him with a yacht.

The big cars and silver sets that are going between Nixon and Brezhnev confirm all the old gut feelings of the common man. When the taxpayer foots the bill, anything goes. The rich get richer and the poor get poorer.

Well, it's another world up there among the bigwigs that most of us will never know. Take falling in love, for instance. Maybe you are of the old school and think you fall in love for keeps. No such thing.

Liza Minnelli fell madly in love with Peter Sellers four weeks ago but it is all over now. Maybe that's the way to get the most out of love. After all, if it's a good thing, you might as well experience it more than once.

Miss Minnelli is keeping the old show business stereotype bubbling along. She confirms the widespread suspicion that the entertainment business infuses people with a special kind of potion.

All that success and all that money are simply more than many who possess it can deal with. Give us the good old-fashioned way of life where you work hard enough for a dollar to appreciate it and where if somebody says, "I love you," she won't take it back maybe even for a lifetime.

All that glitter and glamor of the screen must go to a person's head. They seem to think that real life is as much a fiction as that which takes place in front of the cameras.

But alas, reality has most of us pretty well in the same place most of the time rather than flitting around the gay places of Europe. And it has most of us in love with the same man or woman, as the case may be, day after day and year after year.

★

Speaking of stability, we noticed a report by Housing Authority Executive Director Dick Burke to the effect that the Arnold Heights area has been "definitely stabilized" by the sale of 500 units there to private owners. That report restores a little of the faith in things that might be eroded as one pursues other elements of the news.

It confirms for us the old idea that people perform closer to potential when they have a stake in their own affairs. Give them a place to live in which they are taking up temporary residence and it is one thing but give them a house that belongs to them and it is another.

Not that all renters are bad, by any means, but there is nothing like home-ownership when it comes to keeping things up to snuff. There are some pretty sloppy home-owners, of course, but on the whole, the home-owner will keep the place up better than a renter or a landlord.

It's the same throughout society. Give the individual a meaningful part in something and he will give back all he has but make him insignificent and he will perform poorly.

'John, You Used To Be A Pretty Good Judge Of Hoss Flesh!"

Atmosphere Favorable

Cocktails and caviar are flowing in Washington. Party Chief Brezhnev and President Nixon have formed a mutual admiration society. Soviet officials are lobbying members of Congress for their support and approval of trade agreements the Russians want.

"The Cold War, as far as we are concerned, is over," Brezhnev told a group of 20 U.S. Senators at a three and one-half hour, Russian-style vodka and baked Salmon luncheon Tuesday. Ideological argument is now part of the past, apparently, as joint agreements on continued cultural exchanges, oceanic research, transportation research and expanding the exchange of information on agricultural production and crop forecasting techniques were concluded in an atmosphere in which "a total absence of polemics" was evident, according to one American official present.

The absence of polemics and competitive bravado is in direct contrast to the last appearance here by a leader of Soviet Communism. Nikita Khrushchev, here in 1959, was on occasion charming but generally contentious.

The new spirit in U.S.-Soviet relations is due in large part, of course, to President Nixon's desire to preside over an era of negotiation, rather than confrontation, and it is one accomplishment to which the President can point with pride.

A generation of peace doesn't necessarily follow a session of preliminary talks conducted in jovial spirits, but the atmosphere is a hopeful sign.

There are influential leaders in the Congress who will warn us not to be taken in, that Brezhnev is a wolf in sheep's clothing, and they will point to last year's Soviet-American wheat and grain deal as an example of how we have been recently snookered. And there is some wisdom in taking the guarded approach. The difference in social systems and national aspirations still does not permit total openness and innocence.

The American people, however, due in large part to the President's policies we think, have the most favorable attitude toward the Soviet Union that they have held since World War II. According to the Gallup Poll, favorable U.S. opinion has experienced a dramatic upswing.

And certainly, if the mood of the peoples of the two great nations is increasingly favorable, and the leaders can talk in a cordial atmosphere, there is a greater chance for fruitful disposition of the issues at hand.

Kelley Invites Oversight

Clarence Kelley, nominated by President Nixon to be director of the FBI, apparently is anxious to impress the Senators now holding hearings on his confirmation.

Sounding like the soul of independence, Kelley told the Judiciary Committee that he has "never bowed to political pressure and I'm not about to start." It was the pressure caused by L. Patrick Gray's political associations that caused Gray to withdraw his name as Nixon's initial appointee to fill the FBI vacancy on a permanent basis.

Kelley is to be commended for his independent posture, but a further suggestion on his part that a congressional oversight committee might be helpful for the FBI is subject to question.

J. Edgar Hoover reportedly opposed in general all congressional oversight except that practiced by the appropriations committees in the House and Senate.

Hoover might have had something there, if the point is to keep the FBI free of politics.

Certainly Congress should have the right to investigate FBI activities if it sees fit, but an oversight committee devoted strictly to FBI affairs might involve the agency in partisan politics as much as an improper appointment.

On this issue, at least, Kelley seems a little over-eager to please the committee.

Patchwork Prairie Country

After dragging all sorts of things about the yard, the little dog is in our good graces again. He caught a rat, a full-grown one, at that, and proudly displayed it outside the back door on the drive.

As we drove into the yard one evening before suppertime, there he sat hovering over his kill that had only recently had the last bit of life snuffed from it. He seemed to understand our words of praise and wagged his tail in response. Now, if he will continue his newly found talent, we should have a decrease in the rat population, although at intervals we set out bait stations in the crib and machine shed.

When twilight comes, I open the doors wide and push up the windows to let the breath-arresting summer day come into the house. There are night smells of dewy grass or new-mown hay just across the field, of roses by the door and fresh wind that stirs the poplar trees.

Early night sounds come plunging in when insects sing and try their gossamer wings or a thrush sings from the thicket. There is the roar of a motor as a tractor goes down the road, the weary farmer ready to call it a day or a motor scooter racing the wind.

There is the early evening star, the first to light the summer sky, followed by a star-studded sky that seems to make the heavens spill over to the earth. Or perhaps a yellow tiger cat stalks its prey with untamed eyes as it prowls the lane. It's sort of turning our home "inside-out" for a bit of refreshing tranquility at the close of a long, hot day.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Farmer works this morning putting the cultivator on the tractor, shining the shovels and making adjustments. With the hot summer days that we thought would never arrive, the young field plants have made giant strides. The weeds likewise have been growing. Stirring the ground and also ridding it of weeds always give the plants a boost. A clean field makes it easy to feast the eyes upon, freshly tilled and neat.

☆ ☆ ☆

The beans are blooming in the garden now and already I can taste fresh yellow beans, creamed in a thick sauce with a bit of chopped parsley. How I wish I might dwell upon the taste of fresh new potatoes and peas creamed together. We raise neither so must forfeit such culinary delicacies. But always I can call to mind such good food as this, plus spring chicken fried to a golden brown and home-made pies that appeared on our dinner table during the summer on the farm. It seems so long ago and far away now but these foods were standard fare on most of the tables of farm families. Farms at that time were self-sufficient, raising the chickens and cows, churning the cream for butter, home gardens big enough for summer eating and winter canning, a scattering of fruit trees and fresh eggs to go with home-cured ham and bacon. There was home-rendered lard for pies, honey if a swarm of bees was kept or by chance decided to stay in a hollow tree or old building, and home-made bread.

This all sounds so rose-colored but I know there was much work attached to achieving all these good things and they were truly good by today's standards.

I have missed the spring chickens more than any other food for unless you have eaten them, fattened on grain, with the run of the farm to snip extra greens, you will never know what the "real" product tasted like. When you held a drumstick in your hand, you knew you had a drumstick, big, juicy and full of flavor . . . something to sink the teeth into.

Ah me! We, too, are the victims of change but I am glad I had some of the good life before I accepted such change.

Amendment 7

North Platte, Neb.

Today our national government is going through a situation those wonderful and noble men who signed our precious U. S. Constitution would never have thought possible. Whatever happens, we all have learned a lesson. Our laws are working. Our system does work and will.

The Watergate scandal has shown that. Justice and our laws are being used.

We must not cast a stone on anyone until he has been proven guilty. Punishment must be given to those who are proven guilty. Regardless of where the ax falls. High officials must be treated the same as any other citizen.

Here in Nebraska, it seems to me we must be awakened. In November, 1972, all of us who took the time and used our intelligence to cast a ballot did not get what we voted for. No wonder we have so much apathy. Let's not let it happen again.

We were given many amendments to vote on — for and against.

Amendment No. 7 provided for the Legislature to enact legislation providing that land actually being used for agricultural purposes shall be valued for tax purposes on the basis of such use regardless of other potentials.

Yes votes: 25,672; no votes 22,656. Big Question?

I was personally interested in this No. 7. I have written several letters — one to Governor Exon. No reply. To Lt. Gov. Marsh; reply, June 8. To State Tax Commissioner Peters; reply, June 9. Finally the information was given out: The Legislature failed to act on this No. 7. This information was given after adjournment.

Who runs the state of Nebraska — a few people or the people who speak at the elections?

Let's change a few things before it is too late. If this is the legal way it is done, let's get it changed at the next election. This No. 7 would help bring business into our state. Big business won't even stop when they look at the tax on available locations.

Why waste money to print amendments, publish them in newspapers, etc., and later fool the public?

The slogan, "We Got Pride," is o. k. Let's get another one — "Honesty For All."

No Utopia Here

Lincoln, Neb.

Democratic process, redistribution of wealth, organized citizenry, revitalization, welfare for the poor and aged, charity, justice, federal programs — these and many more high-sounding words and phrases are used for the express purpose of playing on emotions and sympathies.

This nation was not founded on the principle of economic equality. It was not expressed nor implied in the beginning nor can the whole concept be changed to make this applicable today. Freedom to pursue was the gut of the original document (much changed and diluted now) without guarantee that each man would reach the same goal.

Justice and economic equality are so often erroneously thought of as synonymous. It is the contention of many that if all had an equal amount of money, justice would prevail. Not so, and it could never be. Take the vast riches and resources of this nation, if you will, and divide them equally among the people. In a short time, the poor now would be poor again and the rich now would be rich again.

Bishops will always cry in anguish that charity is not enough. For to do away with charity would be to remove the dark threat to the hoarded, uncounted and unaccounted for billions in treasure accumulated through the centuries. All the while they reach out greedily for the nickels and dimes (under the threat of the displeasure of God) that these same "poor" so sorely need.

Utopia was not ordained to man on this earth. This state of being is reserved in the form of a promise that beyond the veil lies heaven.

If you can walk, ask no man to carry you across the street.

Forgotten People

Lincoln, Neb.

The dear elderly Social Security recipients had to work all their lives in order to collect a pauper's sum of less than a hundred dollars a month after 65 years of age. Senior citizens are forgotten people.

The farmers have been subsidized millions of dollars a year for not disturbing the earthworms. One California farmer has been collecting over four million dollars a year tax-free. Presently the poor farmers can collect only $55,000 per crop — three crops, $165,000, the limit. So they have divided up the farms among all members of the family and relatives, so each one can collect $55,000 tax-free per crop.

Senior citizens are a minority group and must organize themselves politically, making their demands known all the way from City Hall to the White House. They should demand $500 a month plus medical and hospital care. No one needs it more than they do.

Due to the overburden of income taxes, real estate taxes and other taxes, the working class cannot build an estate for retirement today.

The rapid changes in industry and life styles, the loss of contracts and business failures destroy all hopes of retirement programs in many cases. A job with a good retirement program today could crash long before we reach retirement age. Social Security could be the working man's only hope of survival after 65 years of age.

Severe Unbroken Drought Enlarging African Deserts

ISIOLO, KENYA — "Everything depends on the rains," said the ochre-painted Samburu herdsman. "Usually the rain begins in March and goes to June. This year the soil is like flour." To prove his point, he kicked up a small puff of dust.

It is widely feared that a massive crop failure will occur in Kenya by August, and that nomadic tribesmen will lose up to half their herds of livestock.

Some of the deep wells which the Samburu dig in river beds have dried up. At one such well, on the Songa River, men and women were hauling up the soupy, muddy water by hand, a bucket at a time, to feed their sheep and goats. An outsider soon discovers that water dominates all conservation and activity.

☆ ☆ ☆

Elsewhere in Africa, drought conditions are even worse. The West African states of Chad, Mali, Mauritania, Senegal and Upper Volta have been hit by what is described as the most severe drought in 60 years. Agricultural experts predict that millions of Africans will starve to death unless the problem is dealt with swiftly.

The current drought almost surely will hasten the slow but steady spread of the Sahara Desert. In biblical times, North Africa enjoyed generally favorable climatic conditions. The land was a granary and water-loving animals like the hippopotamus were to be found in abundance.

Decreasing rainfall over the past 15 centuries has turned vast areas of Libya, the Sudan, Algeria, and much of Niger and Chad into an arid moonscape. Now, the desert is beginning to claim land that was, until recently, productive grazing and cropland. The tragedy is twofold. Until the drought is broken, numerous Africans face hunger and death. And even after the rains return, it may prove impossible to reclaim the parched lands.

☆ ☆ ☆

The misery of people in the drought zone is compounded by their ignorance and despair. In some parts of Senegal, farmers have been forced to eat the seed grains they had stored for the next harvest. Thus, hunger is virtually certain to plague the area in 1974, drought or no drought.

Although Kenya's Samburu nomads are aware that this is going to be an exceptionally hard summer, they cannot bring themselves to sell their livestock. If they could be persuaded to sell off half of their herds to the Kenya Meat Board, a British agronomist said, the remaining animals would stand a much better chance of survival.

Despite the increasing severity of the drought over the past five years, the African states themselves have done next to nothing to alleviate the problem. Many of the newly independent governments are too proud to admit that they have no way of purchasing or distributing food supplies.

Nevertheless, foreign countries recognize the dimensions of Africa's problem, and pledges of aid have come from the United States and the European Common Market. The trouble is that any relief program adopted at this stage may be inadequate and too late. And dwindling food surpluses in all parts of the world will limit the amount of assistance that can be provided.

Memo To All Lawyers

WASHINGTON — Before long the prosecutors in the Watergate case will start investigating the big financial contributions to the Nixon re-election committee, and this is likely to open up a whole new chapter in the current political scandals.

The factual situation, which the big corporations and their lawyers will be wise to look into on an urgent basis, is as follows: The names of the big contributors were compiled by former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, the principal Republican fund-raiser, but were shredded when the burglars were caught in Democratic headquarters.

However, when the lawyers for John Gardner's "Common Cause" were taking a deposition from Hugh W. Sloan Jr., former treasurer of the Finance Committee to Re-Elect the President, he told them that another copy of the list was sent to President Nixon and that he understood it was in the possession of Rosemary Woods, the President's secretary.

On investigation, this proved to be true, and on request to the White House, the copy was turned over to the "Common Cause" lawyers and subsequently to the Justice Department prosecutors and the Senate Watergate Investigating Committee.

This almost certainly assures that the names and contributions will be published eventually if not soon. Accordingly, anyone who fails to come forward now and report voluntarily any improper or illegal contributions runs the risk of seeming to be a party to the conspiracy that was financed with contributed funds.

The understanding here is that the Internal Revenue Service has an unpublished rule that anyone who comes forward voluntarily and lists previously undisclosed contributors, before audit and before the facts are disclosed from other sources, is likely to escape criminal penalties, though not interest charges or civil penalties.

Thus, well-informed lawyers in Washington who know about the list in the hands of the prosecutors are urging their clients to check on whether their gifts to the Committee to Re-Elect the President were accurately reported, and if not, to report the gifts accurately and voluntarily at once, not only in their own interests, but to help the prosecutors and get rid of a corrupt system.

Disclosure can be made either directly to the Watergate prosecutors, or to the Office of Federal Elections, General Accounting Office, Washington, D.C. Otherwise, once the list is published, it is likely to be the object of intense investigation, not only by the Watergate prosecutors and the Ervin Committee but by various other committees planning new campaign financing legislation.

Particular attention is likely to be paid in these investigations to contributions made in the name of corporation officials with funds actually made available indirectly by the corporations themselves.

In the short-run, these investigations could be troublesome to some big corporations and labor unions, but in the end, campaign financing reform could relieve the corporations of a shake-down system that has become increasingly expensive and embarrassing to them in recent years.

Usually the pressure is on the big companies from the political fund-raisers to contribute large sums, often in violation or evasion of the election laws. Some of them contribute to as many as a hundred different campaigns, sometimes voluntarily, sometimes in the hope of future favors to be received, but usually because, like the politicians, they are caught in a system they don't like and contribute because they are told their competitors are doing it.

John Gardner at "Common Cause" suggests that voluntary disclosure should apply now not only to the big companies and unions but to every donor of unreported gifts over $100.

"In the heat of the campaign fund raising," he told the New York Times, "a good many business and labor interests and individuals made very substantial contributions to CREP (Committee to Re-Elect the President) in an atmosphere of intense pressure. Many believed that they were simply giving conventional campaign gifts in the tradition of American politics.

"It is now apparent, from the Watergate revelations to date, that a considerable amount of the money collected was in fact used for highly untraditional purposes. Some of the money was used to finance criminal activity. Some of it was used for purposes that were not technically criminal, but highly unethical and repugnant to the American people.

"A considerable proportion of the money given to CREP has never been publicly reported, much because it was given before April 7, 1972 (when the new campaign financing law went into effect). Whether given before or after April 7, 1972, every unreported gift should now be voluntarily disclosed by the donors."

Home Regarded As Sensible Financial Investment

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: — "Is anytime the right time to buy a home? We were going to buy one when we married right after World War II, but prices seemed so high that we settled into a nice rental apartment. After a dozen years of renting, we decided to start looking for a home again but were so shocked at how prices had risen that we felt it was too late to think about home ownership. Now nearly 30 years have passed. We're in our 50s and housing prices seem higher than ever. We have saved $18,000 for a down payment, but it kills us to think about the $50,000 or so we've poured down the hole in rent the past 28 years. Just when is the right time to buy a home?"

Answer: — I'm an advocate of buying a home as soon as one gets settled into a paying job. Even if one doesn't plan to stay in that community forever, those payments on a house are like savings in the bank since you retain equity in the property. When most people grow old they find their largest single asset is their home and it also becomes their best hedge for inflation since the value of a home continues to rise as other prices rise. Most elder homeowners today will attest that buying a home years ago when they first started work was the most sensible financial investment they ever made.

☆☆☆

Question: — "You quoted some man who wants no funeral. That's the way I used to feel. I had stopped going to funerals, even for relatives, and said I wanted no eulogies or anyone crying for me. One day I took my will out of the safe deposit box and told my husband I was going to put down in black-and-white my wishes that I be cremated quickly with no funeral notices or anything. He listened and said quietly, 'Then who will come out here to comfort me? Will I have to bear my sorrow all alone?' This altered my point of view, and he's convinced me maybe there is a place for conventional funerals."

Answer: — You're right. We may not care for funerals, but in some cases these services and rituals may help ease the grief and sorrow of those who survive.

Question: — "I'm fed up with old people. I'm 72 and no spring chicken, but I tried to organize a golden age club and tried to whip up interest in chartering a bus now and then for elders. I even tried to get my contemporaries interested in petitioning for a housing project for the aged. But they didn't respond. They'd rather sit at home and complain that they're neglected. What's the matter with most old people?"

Answer: — Nothing's the matter with them. They just need to be prodded and encouraged. Generally, if there's proper leadership older people can be quickly recruited to do a host of worthwhile things in a community. Those in charge have to be patient and persistent and persuasive, for older people are often skeptical of innovations and new ideas.

Swanson May Seek PSC Seat

State Treasurer Wayne Swanson, who is constitutionally prevented from seeking another term in that office, said Wednesday he is giving thought to the possibility of seeking a return to the state Public Service Commission, formerly the state Railway Commission.

"Anybody who's been in state politics for 17 years is not going to throw it all to the winds," he suggested.

But he ruled out the possibility of a try for any of the other top state offices to be filled in next year's elections — governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, auditor or secretary of state.

Swanson, 58-year-old Republican and native of Omaha, served on the Railway Commission for 10 years — the last railway commissioner to be elected from the state at large. The commission thereafter was reorganized to provide for the election of members by districts.

Swanson resigned from the Railway Commission in January of 1967 to assume the office of treasurer, to which he had been elected the previous November. Robert Marland was appointed to fill the two years remaining of Swanson's Railway Commission term.

At the end of next year Swanson will have rounded out his second four year term as treasurer. Terms presently run for four years and the Constitution limits tenure to two terms.

Rites Set For Drowning Victim

Lincoln Star Special

Cairo — Funeral services for Tonya Su Harders, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harders, will be at 10 a.m. Friday at Christ Lutheran Church at Cairo.

The little girl, who would have been 2 years old July 11, drowned Tuesday in a sandpit three miles south of the Wood River Interchange on Interstate 80.

A native of Seoul, Korea, the child was adopted by the Harders and came to the U.S. a year ago.

Authorities said the child was sleeping in the family car Tuesday while her parents were fishing. She apparently awoke, wandered from the car, and fell into the sandpit.

Surviving in addition to her parents are brothers, Steven, Shawnee and Todd; sister, Tami; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Harders of Wood River.

Scholarship Given

Miss Jan M. Owens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ardell K. Owens of Lincoln, has been awarded the $200 Beers-Hill Scholarship for the University of Nebraska for the 1973-74 school year.

Planners Again Unable To Act On Three Issues

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The City-County Planning Commission Wednesday was again unable to act on three matters for lack of the necessary five affirmative votes for a decision.

With only five members present, there was a split vote on two change of zone requests, necessitating carrying the matters over until the regular meeting next week.

Two commissioners voted for and three against a request for a change of zone from A-2 Single Family to G Local Business at the southwest corner of Normal and 39th to permit a professional building.

The commission also deadlocked by a vote of three for denial and two against denying the application of M&S Development Inc. for a change from A-2 Single Family to C Multiple at the northeast corner of Hitchock and 30th.

The commission also was unable to act on a recommendation on the compliance with the comprehensive plan of a new maintenance shop for the fire department to be at the existing training center in Snell Park.

The commission held over, pending more information, the preliminary plat for Putensen's Addn. east of 31st and north of Calvert.

Persons opposing the plat pointed to the inaccessibility of one lot plus drainage problems in the area.

Gaining unanimous approval of the Commission were the final plats for Hillsdale Estates First Addn. at 77th and Lexington and Hitching Post Hills, one mile west of Southwest 12th and one-half mile north of West Denton Rd.

Storing Explosives

The Commission also approved a building permit application by Rich Bros. Co. for construction of a building for storing explosives at 5700 Cornhusker.

Attorney Charles Noren, representing Rich on the application, explained that the firm now has five buildings on the site where it stores fireworks for wholesale and some retail sale.

However, he pointed out that two of the existing buildings are being taken for highway improvement and the new structure will merely replace those two.

In other action, the Planning Commission approved:

—Vacation of the north-south alley from the south line of Sanders Ave. to the north line of the east-west alley of Block 8 in Midway Addn.

—Vacation of that part of the east-west alley from the east line of 65th St. to the west line of the northsouth alley extended south.

—Vacation of the north-south alley in Block 1, Yolande Place from the north line of Yolande Ave. to the north line extended of Lot 5 of Block 1.

—Vacation of a portion of Ninth St. at Adams.

Brezhnev Beyond Reproach With Venture Into Capitalism

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Ideologically speaking, Leonid I. Brezhnev is beyond reproach in his venture into the wilds of capitalism. He is carrying out to the letter the strategy of V. I. Lenin.

While that doesn't seem to raise many eyebrows on this side of the water, it does pose a question of just how much things have changed in the Soviet attitude toward the United States.

In 1920 when newly established Soviet Russia — it was not yet the Soviet Union — was in desperate need of help out of its enormous economic troubles, the founder of Bolshevism, V. I. Lenin, had this to say:

"Let the American capitalists not disturb us. We shall not disturb them. We are ready even to pay them with gold for machinery, tools and so forth, which are of use to transport and production; and not only with gold, but also with raw materials."

Now, 53 years later, Lenin's successor casts an eye at U.S. capitalism as a source for the wherewithal to cure Soviet economic ills. In effect, he is saying: "Okay, capitalists, let's trade. We want machines and tools and so forth, and we can pay for them with raw materials; and not only raw materials, but with gold if necessary."

Brezhnev's hard-working theoreticians at home in the Kremlin use the Lenin quotation to demonstrate that their current leader is on the ideological rails. The precept is presented as the basis of the entire Kremlin policy of "peaceful coexistence." If so, then the concept hasn't changed much since the days of Lenin. The man who became the reigning deity of the Communist Olympus was never soft on Capitalism.

Ponderous articles in the party's theoretical journal, Kommunist, seem aimed at reassuring the faithful at home and abroad that what is going on is for the greater power and glory of the whole movement.

The following quotations, all from the latest edition of Kommunist, are just random samples of many that raise hard questions:

—"Peaceful coexistence and the process of normalizing relations among states with different social systems does not mean that the class struggle between socialism and capitalism eases."

Question: Doesn't this mean that peace will not be allowed to go to far?

—"It is no accident that imperialism's foreign policy strategy in the struggle against relaxation of tension ... is aimed primarily at disuniting Socialist countries and driving wedges between them."

Question: If "imperialism," by Soviet definition, means a camp headed by the United States and that camp is trying to break up the "Socialist camp, how come Moscow is so euphoric about the summit with the head of all imperialists?

—"The class nature of imperialism remains as before. But ... the increased might and international prestige of the Soviet Union ... has changed the correlation of world forces in favor of peace, progress and socialism."

Question: Since in Moscow's lexicon peace and progress are synonymous with "socialism," does that mean the West is restrained from war on the East only by the mighty Soviet forces? Doesn't that suggest the Soviet armed forces are going to remain mighty?

—"The military cooperation of the Socialist states is an objective necessity at the present stage since there is real danger of imperialist aggression."

Question: Does this mean that while Moscow decries the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as a military block, the Warsaw Pact must continue indefinitely as a military block?

—"The general crisis of capitalism continues to develop and deepen ... It is important to make fuller use of potentialities arising from the current aggravation of the general crisis of the capitalist system."

Question: If Moscow believes an inevitable crisis will bring the collapse of the U.S. system, what does it say about the long-term deals the Russians seek?

Innumerable quotations of this sort all beg for the sort of plain language explanation Moscow will never give. But Communist acts do not necessarily accord with Communists words anyway.

For example, Brezhnev right now is violating a Lenin principle. Lenin's Decree on Peace, issued just after the Bolshevik takeover, called among other things for "abolishing secret diplomacy and expressing the firm intention to hold all talks openly." Lenin himself violated it. So did Stalin and Khrushchev. And Brezhnev is doing likewise in Washington.

Rockefeller Orders Halt To Plans For Long Island Bridge

©The New York Times

New York — In a Major reversal, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller ordered an end to all plans for the Long Island Sound bridge project that he had sought for several years in the face of growing opposition from residents and environmentalists.

At the same time, the governor announced that he would revive his proposal — defeated by the voters in 1971 — for a bond issue of more than $1 billion for mass transit construction and highway projects "which do not involve ecological problems."

"The Rye-Oyster Bay bridge has become a lightning rod in this period of evolution," Rockefeller asserted. "It is clear that the people want to take a more careful look at decisions which affect the face of their land," he said, describing the environmental awareness that has become a popular force since the bridge was first proposed a decade ago.

"They want to question carefully any development which brings massive change," Rockefeller said.

He made no mention of the fact that the House of Representatives voted recently to deny 90% federal aid for the bridge's approach roads unless it were approved by the legislatures of New York and Connecticut, both of which had indicated opposition to the proposed 6.5-mile bridge.

Rockefeller had said such a bridge would bring jobs and other economic benefits to the Long Island Sound area and ease traffic pressures on New York City.

Scores of houses and acres of woodland would have been destroyed by the project, along with wetland tracts that have come to be increasingly valued in recent years.

The 1971 bond referendum — for $2.5 billion in mass transit and highway funds — was defeated by a vote of 2.4 million to 1.5 million, and one of the clear forces at the time were environmental groups organized around various local controversies, such as the sound bridge.

Thai Regime Orders Out Exiled Premier

Bangkok, Thailand (UPI) — Deputy Foreign Minister Chartchai Chunahawan said Wednesday exiled former Burmese Premier U Nu had been ordered to leave Thailand and would probably go to the United States.

Nu, who has lived in Thailand since 1968 and been active in organizing rebel groups which operated from sanctuaries along the Thai-Burmese border, has been seeking to gain residence in India.

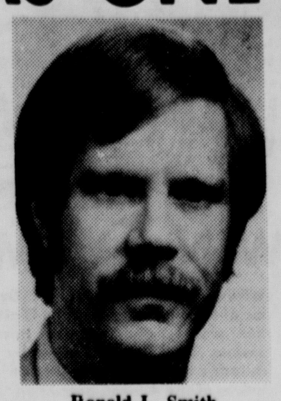
Regents To Consider Smith As UNL Dean

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents will get a recommendation this weekend to name a 35-year-old Michigan man, Ronald L. Smith, as dean of the UN-Lincoln College of Business Administration.

And it will consider, among more than a score of major personnel appointments, a recommendation to name UNL Prof. J. M. Daly as interim director of a new UNL School of Life Sciences.



Ronald L. Smith

J. M. Daly

D. W. Olive

The recommendations will be considered at a meeting set for 10 a.m. Saturday in the NU System Building at 3835 Holdrege. Informal sessions Friday evening and earlier Saturday morning will precede the public meeting.

The meeting promises to be both lengthy and lively, since the board will also debate a number of controversial topics — including abortions, alcohol consumption on the campus, expanded visitation rights in residence halls and student fees.

The board will also consider salary recommendations for the new year, operational budgets from the three campuses and a legislative resolution on Hiram Scott College.

Host Of Promotions

In personnel recommendations, there are a host of promotions to new jobs or newly titled ones, as well as the appointments of Smith and Daly.

Smith, now of Flint, Mich., would succeed Charles Miller as business dean Aug. 15. Smith is now chairman of the department of communication and organizational behavior at the General Motors Institute.

He holds graduate degrees from Purdue University, where he studied industrial relations and organizational behavior, and he has just completed a term as president of the International Communication Association.

He was the youngest department chairman in the 50-year history of the General Motors Institute when he was named four years ago to head the new department.

Interim Director

Daly, now C. Petrus Peterson professor of biochemistry and nutrition, would be interim director of a new UNL School of Life Sciences, which would be formed with elimination of the departments of botony, microbiology and zoology on the City Campus and modification of the department of biochemistry and nutrition on the East Campus.

The new school would be an organizational unit of the College of Arts and Sciences.

In other personnel matters, a former UNL professor, David W. Olive, would be named to a new professorship in electrical engineering.

Olive, now Lloyd Freeman Hunt professor at the University of Southern California, would become the first Lott professor of electrical engineering at UNL.

The post is named in honor of the late Antone L. Lott, once president of Motor Products Co. of Detroit.

Olive will work with industry and utilities in the new job.

Other Recommendations

Other personnel recommendations include appointment of:

—Richard L. Fleming, now assistant director, as UNL director of public relations.

—Herbert F. Schliesser, now vice chairman of speech pathology and audiology, as interim director of the UNL Barkley Memorial Center for the training of teachers of handicapped persons.

—Roger M. Massey, now interim director of the School of Environmental Development, to acting dean of the UNL College of Architecture.

—Adam C. Breckenridge, now professor of political science, as acting director of UNL libraries.

—John D. Ritchie, now assistant director, as director of UNL financial aids and scholarships.

—Vernon G. Williams, now coordinator of the teaching and learning center, as director of the UNL counseling center.

—Miles Tommerassen, now director of business and finance, as vice chancellor of UNL business and finance.

—Ned Hedges, now assistant to the vice chancellor for academic affairs, as assistant vice chancellor for UNL academic affairs.

—Raymond G. Haggh, now professor of music theory, as UNL associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

—Roy G. Arnold, now associate professor, as chairman of the UNL department of food science and technology.

—James A. Rawley, now professor of history, as chairman of the UNL history department.

—Myron L. Pudwill, now instructor of restorative dentistry, as assistant professor and chairman of the department of restorative dentistry.

—George R. Miller, now physical plant administrator and special project evaluator, as special consultant for engineering in the UNL administration.

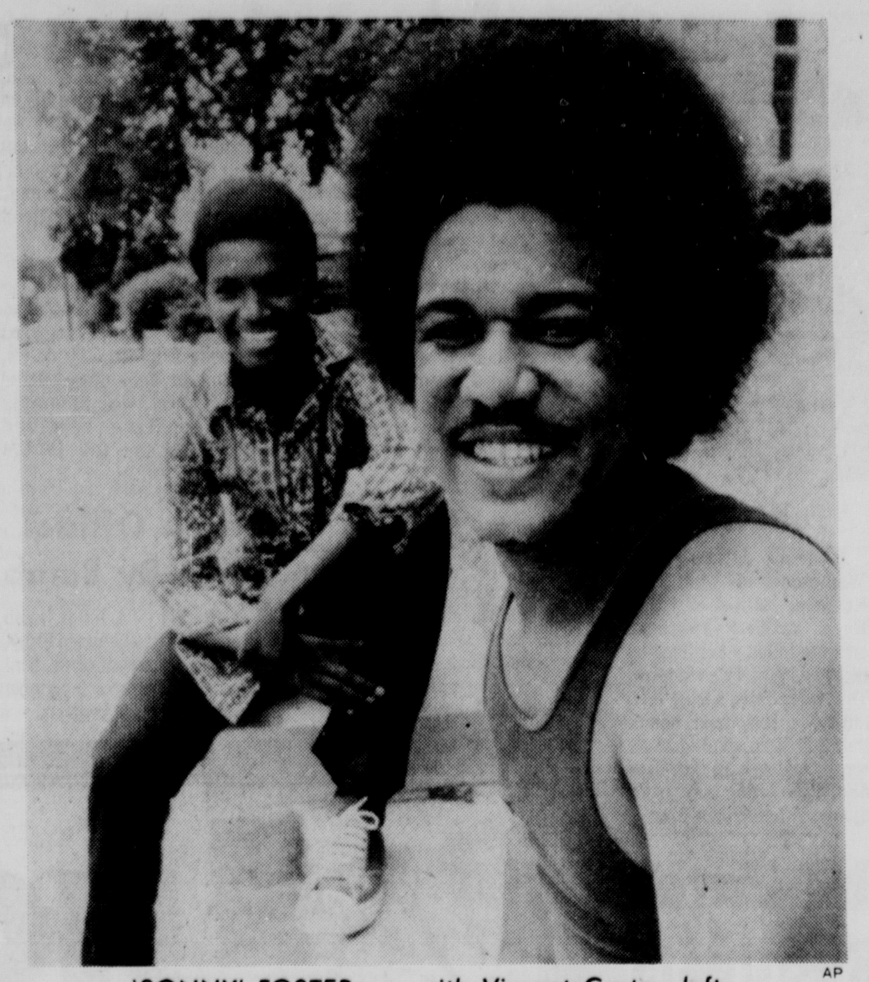
—Merk Hobson, NU executive vice president for academic affairs, to a one-third time appointment for the summer months.

—James Maynard, now NU coordinator of budgetary and economic study to assistant vice president and director of budgets and management information systems.

—Thomas E. Michels, now assistant to the director of the computer network, to assistant director.

—Charles Hein, now UNO director of university relations, to executive assistant to the UNO chancellor.

—Harvey A. Martens as director of UNO research and planning.



'SONNY' FOSTER . . . with Vincent Carter, left. AP

Black Student Leader Says Dissent Still On Campuses

Omaha (AP) — The first black student body president of a Nebraska college or university says student dissent hasn't left the college campuses but that new methods are being used.

Joseph "Sonny" Foster III said rioting and civil disturbances that occurred during the late 1960's achieved only piecemeal results. "Students are thinking out ways now to obtain lasting results." he said.

Foster was elected president of the student body at Creighton University in the spring by 504-344 over a white business major, Greg Schwietz of Omaha. The total vote was considered extremely low for the school's 4,000 predominatly white students, less than half the turnout of three years ago.

Foster explained, "Students have grown apathetic because they don't have the power to force change. If you don't have the power, why think about it? It's the same reason you don't think about spending a million dollars when you don't have it."

He predicted the 1970s may not be as sensational as the '60s on college campuses. "But there's a big move, a power struggle going on and students won't settle for token solutions. Not only students but the faculties and communities are becoming involved," he said.

Foster's approach is for more student participation in university decisions. "Students are paying for a service," he said. "If I hired a plumber and the job wasn't done right, I would want to ask some questions. The same holds for schools."

Foster, a 21-year-old soft-spoken Omahan, points to student participation previously achieved at Creighton.

A joint conference has been established consisting of three students, three faculty members and three members of the board of directors to discuss viewpoints and exchange ideas. Students also may now file written statements on applications by teachers for rank and tenure. And students now hold membership on a number of academic and other committees.

But Foster said students ought to be involved in other areas, such as campus expansion and new facilities. He said he doesn't intend to preside over a "glorified events committee" whose activities are restricted to planning dances and concerts.

"Colleges can't use the rah-rah appeal for student support anymore. Students must be dealt with on a more mature basis. They can't be looked on as kids," Foster said.

As an Omaha Benson High School senior, Foster was introduced to Creighton with a personal tour of the campus by an admissions counselor three years ago.

It was the same day that a number of Creighton students, frustrated in their demands for a policy of limited dormitory visitation by the opposite sex, turned on water faucets throughout the campus. It was the only destructive expression of dissent on the campus during the late '60s.

Foster said the admissions counselor at first said the scene was untypical, then switched psychology to imply how exciting college life is.

Incidentally, Creighton now has a comparatively liberal dorm visitation schedule.

Foster said student participation in the decision making of universities is inevitable. But he said the students must be given information.

Administrators have told him, he said, that students don't make "logical, rational decision. I tell them you are not giving us rational, logical information."

He said he realizes that not all his goals may be achieved next year. But he said student leadership can set the tone on a campus.

Festus Is Excited By Nebraskaland

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

North platte — Danged if Nebraskaland Days ain't enough to excite even Festus.

As at least 20,000 fun-seekers swarmed over this town Wednesday, not one was having a ball to match that of Ken Curtis. The drawling "Gunsmoke" character, here to receive the ninth annual Buffalo Bill Award, was plainly up to his mules ears in pleasure.

Highlighting a 130-unit parade which itself highlights one of the state's biggest annual blowouts, Festus flashed his famous grin over the entire route. It was obvious he was one of the most popular recipients ever of the entertainment award.

The native Coloradoan, 56, surprised at the noon awards luncheon by leading a half-hour program which combined his comedy with a most pleasing voice. Many of the 450 persons present had no idea that Curtis' background included singing stints with Tommey Dorsey and Fields.

A reminder of other days with "Sons of the Pioneers," was his solo rendition of "Tumbling Tumbling Weeds." Drawing equal applause was his humor — much of it a takeoff on his fellow "Gunsmoke" personalities.

"The mainest question I'm asked is about old Mathew, how tall he is," jested Curtis, his battered hat at its usual jaunty set. "Shucks, I don't know. I ain't never seen nothing but his beltbuckle."

Of the relationship between Matt and Miss Kitty, now in its 19th TV year, Curtis said he suspects that Matt is "trying to save up a nest egg."

"The trouble is," he grinned with well-known widening eyes, "Miss Kitty is going to be too old to hatch it."

And later: "Why, our Miss Kitty is sweeter than sugar and twice as lumpy."

Curtis said he was particularly gratified that the annual award was for "family-type entertainment," which was also noted at the luncheon by Gov. J. James Exon. An admiralship in the Nebraska Navy presented by the governor was one of several other honors bestowed on Curtis.

He also rated a Sunday-go-to-meetin' hat from the Nebraska Cow Belles, a pigskin jacket from the Nebraska Pork Producers, a colonelship in the Cody Scouts, a souvenir deed to a plat of Scouts Rest Ranch and a souvenir cow hide. The latter, presented by the Nebraska Stock Growers Association, was branded on the spot with an outline of the state.

Both the luncheon and the parade were prettied up by 16 queens. Led by 1973 Miss Nebraskaland Judi Upton of Norfolk, most were representative of various livestock organizations.

At a press conference at Scouts Rest Ranch, yesteryear stomping grounds of William Cody, Curtis said his residency is in California but that he owns a hog-raising operation in Texas. Most of his production goes to Jimmy Dean's sausage plant.

The actor said he not only enjoys playing the part of Festus, but that he "knows this character pretty well." His parents had lived in the very era portrayed by the "Gunsmoke" series, he explained.

"Festus is the combination of all the old cowboys I had known," he said. "It's pure joy to play him. Doc and I have been friends for over 25 years, so we especially have fun performing together."

Actual presentation of the entertainment award was made Wednesday night by Gov. Exon at the opening performance of the annual Buffalo Bill Rodeo. Attracting top cowboys from all over the country, the rodeo runs through Saturday night.

Among a full array of other activities, the annual rollicking Frontier Revue and its 90-member cast is playing to capacity audiences twice nightly. The comedy musicale features western songs written by Dr. James Thayer of Sidney.

100 Events Will Mark Centennial

Kearney (UPI) — A total of 100 special events have been lined up for the celebration of Kearney's Centennial June 23-30. Each day will have a theme and a chairman for the vents slated for that day. A 3 p.m. parade at the opening Saturday and a 2 p.m. parade on the closing Saturday will look at the past and future respectively. Religious heritage Day Sunday will feature a massed centennial worship service at Foster Field. The first six performances of a huge historical spectacular, "One Hundred Years Young," with a cast of more than 500, will be staged at Foster Field Monday, which has been designated Pioneer and Homecoming Day.

Air Show Set For Ord

Ord (AP) — The first Nebraska state air show will be held here Sunday, according to Bill French of the Ord Chamber of Commerce. The show will include parachute jumps by three members of the Kearney jump club, stunt flying and a balloon ascension. Marvin Kivett, director of the Nebraska State Historical Society, will dedicate the Evelyn Sharp historical marker.

Clef Dwellers Chosen For Overseas Tour

Fremont (UPI) — The Midland College Clef Dwellers, a swing vocal music group, have been chosen by the United Service Organization for an overseas tour in the summer of 1974. Eugene Nelson, director of the Clef Dwellers and associate professor of music at Midland, said the group will perform from July 15 to Sept. 8, 1974, for servicemen at bases in the Pacific command, including Hawaii, Alaska, Japan, the Philippines, Midway Islands and Micronesia.

Jubilee Planned At Anselmo

Anselmo (AP) — A queen will be crowned Saturday morning to reign over Anselmo's Big Sky Jubilee Celebration. The Miss Jubilee contest will be held Saturday morning, to be followed by a parade, a horse show, children's games and a watermelon feed.

Gibbon Man Draws Three-Year Sentence

Kearney (AP) — A 43-year-old Gibbon man was sentenced to a three-year term in the State Penal Complex. Robert Strong, who had earlier entered a guilty plea to charges of grand larceny, appeared before District Judge S. S. Sidner in Buffalo County District Court here. Strong had been charged with the theft of some $2,100 from a Kearney service station where he worked last March.

Western Tech College Board To Meet

Scottsbluff (AP) — The newly appointed Western Nebraska Technical Community College district board will hold its first meeting Thursday at Nebraska Western College here. The 11-member board, which oversees Nebraska Western College of Scottsbluff, West Nebraska Technical College of Sidney and the Alliance School of Nursing, was appointed last week by Gov. J. James Exon. The board is expected to elect officers, establish a depository for funds, appoint legal counsel, discuss the budgets and establish regular meeting nights.

Growers, Traders Worried About Soybean Prices

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

A story is told in the small towns of Nebraska of a man who entered the local bar, plunked down a soybean and ordered drinks for everyone in the house. When the thirst of the community was quenched he got back $4.20 in change.

It's a good story but nobody's laughing in farm, feed and livestock circles. Soybeans have been priced in the $10 to $12 per bushel range for several weeks and everyone in the industry is worried about the situation.

"We used to think $100 a ton for soybean meal was a crisis situation and now meal is $400 a ton when you can get it at all," said M. R. Eighmy, president of Gooch Mill, a major feed manufacturer in Lincoln.

The soybean producers are not happy either. "I doubt that many farmers still have soybeans to sell at today's high prices. Certainly no more than 5% of the crop is still in farmer's hands. People other than farmers are making the money," said Jim Yancey of the American Soybean Assn. in Hudson, Iowa.

Asked who did make money on soybeans, Yancey said, "Primarily the speculators on the grain markets, and some of them lost a lot of money. There is a lot more trading going on than there are soybeans. A wrong guess on the market today can be very expensive," he noted.

Worried

Yancey and others in the soybean business are worried about the long range effect of the current price problems.

"The price is driving people to seek substitutes for soybeans that will be around after the price goes back down," he said.

Yancey noted Norway was building a plant to make a protein feed from wood pulp while Russia has ordered an entire plant that makes protein from oil. "They seem to have plenty of oil," he said.

Last summer soybean growers were worried about what they felt would be price-depressing increases in the soybean crop when the national production was increased 9%. What happened to turn the situation around?

Yancey listed five factors involved in the price increase.

—Bad harvesting conditions in the U.S. cost farmers 125 million bushels of soybeans farmers were never able to get out of fields.

—Russia came into the market in a big way taking 40 million bushels of soybeans away from the supply side of the market picture.

—Peruvian fishermen were unable to find anchovies from which fish meal is made. This accounts for another 150 million bushels of soybeans in terms of demand on the world market.

—Bad weather conditions throughout the world cut the production of feed grains. This drove feed prices up which encouraged the feeding of more protein to cut the amount of feed needed to fatten livestock.

—The big increase in demand for meat and meat products which put greater pressure on the supply of protein feeds throughout the world.

"Any one of these factors would have raised the price of soybeans in a tight supply situation and here we had all five of them at the same time," Yancey explained.

Yancey sees no relief in sight until the soybean harvest begins in October. He is also worried about the possibility of a fuel shortage at harvest time.

"We have requested the President and Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz to allocate fuel supplies right now for the soybean harvest."

"We explained that we know this could cause a squabble from urban people who are upset because they can't go on vacation but we feel they will raise a bigger squabble if they can't find enough to eat this fall," he said.

Export Ban?

The American Soybean Assn. is also opposing a ban on the export of soybeans. "This would cut the price to the support level for November-delivered beans but wouldn't help much until the new harvest. It will really hurt farmers next year," Yancey said.

He noted soybean farmers have invested millions of dollars of their own money to find a market for 50% of their soybeans overseas. "After developing this market we are told our customers will not be allowed to bid on our beans," he said.

Costs of ingredients are hurting the feed industry which is now operating under a price ceiling. "There is no way we can keep on making feed under present conditions. There are some alternative products that can be used in feeds but they are becoming very scarce," said Eighmy, a Gooch Mill executive who has been in the feed business for more than 40 years.

"The whole business has been utter confusion for the past year. It gets so that you want to yell for somebody to stop the world so you can get off," he said.

Eighmy is recommending farmers try to use alfalfa pasture for hogs to cut their protein needs. "It is getting so it is almost a crime to feed soybean meal to cattle when urea (artificial protein) is available as a substitute."

"We have been using peanut meal and cottonseed meal as much as possible. We have even used some corn protein from a corn sugar processor, but these supplies are tightening up fast," he said.

Feed companies have been getting reports of farmers selling bred sows for slaughter due to the high feed prices. "There will be a real meat shortage next year unless we can keep people in the business of producing livestock until the soybean becomes available again this fall," he said.

There should be ample supplies of soybeans this fall once the new crop is harvested barring widespread weather problems and a severe fuel shortage.

"I think we may see a lot of farmers harvest their soybeans first this fall, particularly in view of the shortage of fuel. They will be able to make more from the beans than from corn," predicted Douglas Murfield, state-federal statistician at the U.S. Department of Agriculture office in Lincoln.

Reports from South American indicate Peruvian fishermen will resume production of fishmeal in October which will further reduce the demand for protein feeds.

Reports of crop conditions in soybean-growing areas generally are favorable and acreage is up sharply from last year. Indications are that there will be a record crop of soybeans this year but there are also indications of a record demand around the world.

In the meantime, consumers may find eggs and pork in short supply because poultrymen and pork producers rely heavily on the soybean to provide protein to supplement feed grains given their animals and birds.

Eggs, Meats, Milk Could Become Tight

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Eggs, meats and even milk could disappear from grocers' shelves unless the government does something about the price squeeze on farmers resulting from record high feed prices, according to an official of Nebraska's poultry industry.

Doyle Free, executive secretary of Nebraska Poultry Industries Inc., warned Wednesday that poultrymen would start selling their older birds unless some relief came soon.

"I think the birds over 10 months old will be going to market soon and, if the freeze on prices persists without a drop in feed costs, it could even reach into the pullets going into production because very few poultrymen have cash reserves to sustain a long-term financial loss," he said.

Free said the freeze affected the retail price of eggs, which would result in lower prices to farmers as retailers and wholesalers sought to protect their margin of profit.

'Freeze On Farmers'

"The old freeze fixed the amount of markup a store could charge, but allowed the price of eggs to move up as feed costs increased," he said. "A store could only mark up eggs for a fixed number of cents per dozen, no matter what the price was, but now they can make as much as they want by cutting back on what they pay for the eggs. The freeze is on farmers, no matter what the people in Washington say about it," he said.

Free estimated the cost of producing a dozen eggs at present feed prices at "between 55 cents and 58 cents a dozen."

"A farmer can still set his price if he sells directly to a home owner or to a restaurant, but he is limited by the competition of the price in the stores," he said. "If eggs disappear in the stores, I suppose he can charge whatever he wants but in the meantime he will lose money on every egg he produces," Free explained.

Turkey producers may also have a problem finding an outlet for their birds unless the freeze ends soon. "The rule of June 1 through June 8 has a quirk in it," he said. "In the case of a store that didn't sell turkey during that period they have to go back to the price they charged during the last eight days they sold turkey. If that was last Thanksgiving, it was 33 cents a pound.

Can't Sell Turkey

"With the wholesale price at 55 cents today, you can see that the storekeeper can't sell any turkey this year unless the government does something to ease the situation," he added.

Free noted that beef feeders were also having problems with the high price of feed resulting in a loss of over $30 a head on fat cattle.

"Unless feed prices ease, you will see less beef produced and grass fed cattle going to market this fall," he predicted.

Free noted meat, eggs and milk are perishable, creating a problem for the producer who is unable to store them. "This is one time when it is better to be a grain producer than a livestock producer," he said.

Asked about the effect of the freeze on supplies for consumers, Free predicted that eggs and meat supplies would become tight.

"It is one thing to find high priced food in a super market," he said. "It is quite another to find no food there at all. You can cut back on what you buy when food is high, but you get into some real problems when there is no food available at any price."

Government Asking Action Against IBM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department asked a federal judge Tuesday to hold IBM Corp. in contempt of court for failure to produce some 12,000 documents that the government wants as potential evidence in its long-standing antitrust action against IBM.

In a letter to New York U.S. District Court Judge David N. Edelstein, Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Kauper proposed massive fines against the multi-billion dollar computer firm if it still has not produced the documents by noon June 29.

Kauper asked the court to find IBM in either civil or criminal contempt—or both. He sought a civil fine of 5 per cent of IBM's earnings for each day it continues to hold out—which he estimated at $177,000 per day—or a criminal fine of $1 million.

The disputed files are identical to those IBM furnished the Control Data Corp. in a private antitrust suit settled out of court in Minneapolis earlier this year.

IBM has argued that because the Control Data case was not resolved itself, the papers remained legally privileged — meaning they need not be disclosed. Just last week, the Supreme Court refused to delay a finding that held the firm must cooperate with the department, especially in view of the fact that the documents had, at one point been turned over in the Control Data case.

Nonetheless, said Kauper in his letter, "counsel for the defendant now assert they are . . . not required by law to deliver the documents."

"This position," said Kauper, " . . . is thus in direct and deliberate defiance" of the court and "may result in yet another delay in the government's preparation of this case."

The government charges that the giant computer company has crowded competitors out of a booming market with such policies as offering lump prices for computer, related programming know-how, and support services.

Miss Snyder Given $350 Scholarship

The Lincoln Production Credit Association awarded a $350 scholarship to the University of Nebraska to Miss Rebecca Snyder of Roca, according to PCA President Dwayne Dietze.

Miss Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne B. Snyder, graudated in May from Norris High School. She ranked high scholastically and was active in school and related activities.

Newman Grove Hospital Faces Another Check

Newman Grove — The 10-bed hospital, involved in 1971 in a struggle to retain Medicare elegibility, is being surveyed once again.

The inspection was ordered by the Social Security administration regional office in Kansas City, according to Joe Hageman, director of the state Health Department's standards and licensing division.

Hageman said the state fire marshal's office is checking compliance with the life safety code.

The Newman Grove hospital was threatened with loss of its Medicare eligibility because of inadequate professional nurse staffing.

Farmers Seek Fuel Controls

A group of 35 farmers Union members headed by state Farmers Union President Elton Berck of Lincoln has just returned from a two day flying trip to Washington aimed at getting more fuel for farmers.

"Our purpose was to convince congress that we need mandatory controls so that farmers can have adequate fuel to harvest their crops," Berck said.

Berck described the effort as 70% effective in the congress but less effective in attempts to change the mind of the administration.

"We visited 110 congressmen with good results but when we visited Robert E. Plett who administers the voluntary program we struck a blank wall. Plett and others in Washinton don't seem to feel there is a problem until a farmer's tank has run dry," he said.

"We tried to convince them that a farmer could lose his entire year's investment if he was without fuel for an irrigation pump for three or four good hot Nebraska days but I don't know if we got the job done," Berck said.

"The Senate has agreed to the proposal but the House still hasn't decided the issue. They are going to have to do something because the voluntary program simply isn't working," he added.

Scholarships To 13 Ag Students

State Finds Fuel Bids Scarce

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

State institutions may be in store for a long, cold winter.

The State Purchasing Office reported Wednesday that it has received only one bid envelope back from the 28 fuel suppliers it approached for the 1.3 million gallons of #1, #2 and #6 fuel oil needed for the coming winter.

And Charles Neal, state purchasing agent, said he would not be surprised to find that the one bid from Carter-Waters Corp. of Kansas City contains a "no bid" notice when it is opened at 10 a.m., Thursday.

Still, John Frye, also of the purchasing office, said he's "not ready to panic."

He said many of the firms indicated they would try to fill orders on a per load basis next winter, but they declined to be locked into a contract guaranteeing delivery and price so far in advance.

Typical of the companies' responses to bid invitations was a letter from Charles Salem, president of Salem Oil Co. of Lincoln, saying:

"I wish to submit a willingness to supply to any of the Lincoln locations listed in your invitation on a spot basis," Salem said. "That is, when you need a load of #2 fuel oil, we will be happy to quote a price on the spot and guarantee its delivery at that price. . .if we have the fuel at that time.

"As it is now, I'd be foolish to promise to be able to fulfill any sort of a committment to you, although I'm sure that during the season I can handle quite a few of your orders.

"I cannot quote a firm price because my allocation from Standard Oil is not quite enough to handle our demand."

The fuel oil would be used by the Girls' Training School at Geneva, the Boys' Training School at York, the State Penitentiary and Reformatory, the Lincoln Regional Center, the Beatrice State Home, the Veterans Home in Grand Island, the Hastings Regional Center, Services for the Visually Impaired in Lincoln, the Center for Children and Youth in Lincoln, the Air National Guard, the Labor Department and state offices in the Cengas Building.

The University of Nebraska negotiates its own contract for fuel to heat the Lincoln and Omaha campuses as well as the Statehouse, as do the state colleges.

The contracts for fuel oil run from September 1 thru March 31.

Campus Beer, Liquor Rapped By Chambers

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—State Sen. Ernest Chambers said Wednesday he would ask the Legislature to block any move to allow beer and liquor in dormitories at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The Omahan said he would call for action when the Legislature convenes in January if the Board of Regents approves a plan proposed by Chancellor James H. Zumberge.

Chambers said he is "opposed absolutely" to universities and colleges introducing on their campuses what he considers to be "the most dangerous drug in the country."

He said he lead a successful move in the Legislature two years ago to kill a bill that would have prmitted Creighton University to dispense alcoholic beverages on campus.

It would be "inconsistent and highly unjust," he said, to allow a state university to do "what has been denied to a private university."

Lightning Jolts Computer Files

Los Angeles (AP) — A former employe of a commodity options firm, Puts and Calls Inc., of suburban Sherman Oaks, has testified that its records were scrambled when its computer room was struck by lightning earlier this year.

Harold M. Morrison said that the bolt destroyed the company's master file and the computer was later unable to correct errors made by employes keeping record manually.

Senate Group Approves Bill Fixing $2.20 Minimum Wage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate labor subcommittee Wednesday approved a bill fixing a new $2.20 an hour minimum wage for about 51 million American workers.

The increase from the present $1.60 floor would take place in a year for most employes but some would not get the full $2.20 for three years.

The measure is to be considered in the full Labor Committee Thursday.

It would give 35 million workers covered by the Wages and Hours law before 1966 a $2 minimum at once and $2.20 a year later.

For 16 million employes brought under the law in 1966 and by the pending bill the floor would go to $1.60 at once, $2 a year later, and $2.20 after two years.

For Farm workers, the bill specifies $1.80 after one year, $2 in two years, and $2.20 after three years.

Earthquake Is Predicted

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A Stanford University geophysicist predicted Wednesday that within two weeks a 5.8 magnitude earthquake will cause minor damage in the California town of Hollister.

Prof. Robert L. Kovach made his forecast at the opening of the San Andreas Fault Conference, an international symposium of earthquake experts.

Hollister, seat of a ranching and farming area 160 miles southeast of San Francisco, lies on the San Andreas fault, the cleavage line running the length of California near the Pacific shore. Kovach said the quake would shake an area 10 miles south of the town.

A slippage of the San Andreas fault caused the 1906 San Francisco quake that measured 8.25 on the Richter scale.

Kovac's prediction, based on ground water level observations, supports an April prediction by U.S. Geological Survey scientists that the Hollister area would experience a moderate quake "within several months."

The geological survey's prediction was based on seismograph observance of aftershocks following four small earthquakes along the fault from December 1971 to January 1973. It was the first attempt by American scientists to predict a precise place, magnitude and approximate time of a quake.

Kovach said he and associates have observed the water level in a 600-foot well drilled into the fault near the La Cienaga Winery south of Hollister for the last two years.

He said the water level began to drop Sept. 7, 1972, from what had been its normal fluctuation rate. By June 1, 1973, it appeared to have returned to the normal range again.

Kovach said the fluctation in water level could be caused by an increased porosity in the rock due to cracking — a phenomenon known as dilatancy.

"If we literally accept that dilatancy is taking place, this fluctuation . . . tells us by its 280-day duration that a magnitude 5.8 earthquake is imminent in this area," Kovach said.

'Male Chauvinism'

Women Function In a Man-Made World

If Michael Korda, author of "Male Chauvinism! How It Works" (Random House) were a woman, he would be accused of being bitchy, hysterical — of foaming at the mouth. However, he is not a woman; and as a result, the credibility of his book will very possibly be enhanced in the eyes of readers — both male and female.

That the preceding statement can be made with some degree of assurance is a symptom of what Mr. Korda is attempting to describe in his new and highly-readable book: Women function daily in a world wherein men have set the ground rules, have defined their role, certainly without regard to prior consent.

The woman who attempts to extend herself beyond the confines of her narrowly-defined role as an essentially domestic creature, runs the risk of being thought of as an unfeminine, cantankerous hag. A similar attempt at self-assertion on the part of a man would be thought of as good and somehow quite natural.

That's the way it is, and no amount of good-natured joshing about Women's Lib and its adherents will serve to cover up the essential way in which The System works.

No matter that many women — perhaps a majority — willingly accept their assigned position in life. That is beside the point. Even without reference to the fact that such women have probably been culturally conditioned into this mindless acceptance, it is necessary to abhor a mode of existence that denies certain individuals the possibility of achieving their potential.

The fact that some of the oppressed (would that that word could be stripped of its emotional and propagandistic connotations!) are relatively "happy" living within an inequitable system does not justify the existence of that system.

Although Korda does not, to any great extent, pursue this particular line of reasoning in his effort to put down male chauvinism, he leaves few other stones unturned.

Defining male chauvinism first as the process of categorizing people by virtue of their biological function ("as if this were a determining factor in entirely nonbiological activities and situations"), and then as "the setting of limits for women by men," he launches into a detailed dissertation concerning the way in which it works.

His primary focus is on the business office where women — many of them intelligent, perceptive individuals — are relegated to menial, low-paying jobs (low-paying in relation to jobs held by men who are frequently no more competent or responsible than their female associates).

Korda points out that most young men entering business customarily begin their careers in a position women may spend years trying to achieve.

As the author sees it, the perpetuation of this male-dominated hierarchical system, is one of the ways in which men contrive to prevent too many women from entering too deeply into their established territory.

According to Korda, men have constructed (consciously or unconsciously) a rather elaborate "fantasy world" in which work and domesticity are separated. And they have left only the latter area open to women, hoping that they will be content to stay there.

"When women emerge and join them at work, they undermine the structure men have created," he states.

Confronted with women at work, men have devised a number of ways to deal with them, to keep them "in their place." By controlling the purse strings, and the means by which promotions are granted, men have made certain that their female associates do not go too far: "A woman's success inevitably takes place within a man's world, on his terms: praise is praise for him, status, position, salary are granted by him."

By making limited concessions (here Korda refers to the recent furor over permitting women to wear pants to work), male executives insure that attention is diverted from more substantive issues:

> "Just as it is easier to discuss 'the national problem of housing for minority groups' than to face a real black family that has moved in next door, so it is easier to talk about the company's policy toward women . . . than to face the fact that your assistant is smarter than you are and works twice as hard and can only be kept in her place by treating her as a woman — i.e., one of a subservient class unfit to hold power. After all, if they're not kept in their places, they may take ours."

There are even more insidious ways in which male chauvinism is manifested and practiced — both in and outside the office. As Korda points out, to say "he took it like a man" means that a person reacted with courage and determination. "Taking it like a woman" implies hysteria, weakness.

Furthermore, when dealing with a "successful" woman, men continually look for signs of domesticity: Can Germaine Greer bake a cake? Does Gloria Steinem knit? Interviews with such women are frequently filled with such domestic tidbits. Male chauvinism.

And, in a particularly telling passage, the author addresses himself to the manner in which President's wives are portrayed:

> "With the television cameras of the world trained on them, our First Ladies perfectly represent the dichotomy between men and women: the weighty, important deliberations of their husbands, elected to high office, the meaningless, smiling inspection of domestic affairs set aside for the wives. Men design, finance, build and command ships. Their wives, if they are lucky, are allowed to break a bottle of champagne against the bows at the launching."

He deals briefly with the Women's Liberation Movement, perceptively suggesting that it may, in a sense, be doing women a disservice. By focusing on the successes of a few, outspoken leaders and their philosophical tirades, it may allow men to sidestep the real nitty-gritty issues — the bread-and-butter problems that are of daily concern to the average woman.

In his more esoteric moments — as when he discusses man's allegedly pervasive fear that, ultimately, woman is the only one who can judge him — Korda may, perhaps, be taken with a grain of salt. It's difficult to make a convincing case on such an abstract level.

And, he seems to be slightly off the track in at least one instance: He first offers the dubious statement that the average female worker is probably as strong physically as her male counterpart. Then he turns around and claims that, in today's world, strength no longer suffices, as it once may have, to make one person superior to another.

This apparent contradiction is indicative of a misconception on Korda's part. There are obvious differences — not all culturally-conditioned — between men and women, strength being one of them. Korda cannot admit to this because, to him, difference implies a necessarily superior/inferior relationship.

It would be better, both for the sake of argument and reality, if he simply realized that difference means difference, nothing more.

On the whole, Kodra's book is very well put. If at times he makes the male-female relationship seem like an epic and irreconcilable battle, which it probably isn't, he may be forgiven. For in making his point strongly, he succeeds in sensitizing the reader to the covert and overt ways in which male chauvinism works.

And by doing this, he has perhaps cleared the path that will lead towards amelioration.

Americans Spend Less

Increased costs of living, especially food costs in the United States, have been getting a lot of attention, but cost increases are not confined to the U.S. The average American spends about 16% of his disposable income for food. Add food eaten away from home and the total is 19%

This figure is the lowest in the world, compared to 45 to 50% in Russia, 43% in Japan, 52% in Denmark, 37% in the United Kingdom, and 37% in Norway.

Sportswear Runs Gamut

New York (UPI) — Sportswear once meant sweat socks, sweat shirts, tennis clothes, golf skirts and all such togs for active sports.

Then the term sportswear meant gold dresses, shirtwaist dresses, casual mix and-or match outfits for wearing any place. Today the word sportswear covers just about the gamut of fashion — frilly evening wear excepted.

The new standing for the word "sportswear" was made by many designers showing their fall and winter lines to the nation's fashion reporters in New York for American designer showings.

"Sportswear today has changed from the hard, tailored look to a spirit of elegance, softness and luxury," says Kasper, the designer.

"It's not layers of patterns that play against one another but a harmony of colors and a blending of sweaters, jackets and pants in a simple, uncluttered manner."

In his latest collection shown to the reporters, Kasper offered a new dimension and understanding to these terms. From the loden flannel, English country feeling to the bulky fisherman knit sweaters in heather tones to the lush gabardine group, he underscored luxury and elegance and softness.

"The mood of the clothes is subtle, elegant, simplistic," he said. "It's almost a dressmaker-type look."

Anne Klein was another of the designers who described the term sportswear as "one of today's misnomers." She says the scales have tipped; casual dressing is right for every conceivable occasion in contemporary life. If anything belongs in a "special category," she said, it's formal evening clothes.

The new collection by Miss Klein and her associate Donna Karen is described as a smash hit. A record-breaking — for Anne Klein — $5 million worth has been ordered initially by stores carrying her line.

Her line opened with a costume illustrating her point about sportswear. Pants and a sweater in last season's pale grey-green called sea foam was shown with a suede blazer in the deep winter green Anne called spruce. The two tones seem miles apart but an overtone of blue in each keeps them in harmony.

"The new fashion attitude begins at the top," Miss Klein said. "The triangle shape of the past few years – high armholes, small shoulders widening to a flared skirt, is now reversed The top is large and loose. Pants are straight and skirts look slender, even when there's a lot of fabric."

Armstrong Solarian.™ the no-wax floor that keeps on shining long after the honeymoon is over.

You may not mind it at first, but scrubbing and waxing floors is work. That's why so many young couples choose Armstrong Solarian for their pad. Solarian actually does shine without waxing. The special Mirabond™ wear surface has a gleaming shine of its own. And it keeps its high gloss—without waxing—far longer than an ordinary vinyl floor. Poker party spills, dirt, even black heel marks come up easily, ending the drudgery of scrubbing and waxing, so you can live happily ever after.

Camping With The Cops —They Loved It

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

They came from every walk of life. From foster homes, from homes where alcoholism was rampant, from families with records of run-ins with the law, from welfare families, from poor living conditions.

They came with bad attitudes toward the law, in general, and the police, in particular.

They came from all over Lincoln, and they spent a week with those authoritarian figures — the men and women associated with the Lincoln Police Department — and loved every minute of it.

The 99 youngsters who attended this year's Lincoln Police Youth Camp had fun with their police-counselors and, more important, got to know them as men and women, as humans.

Along with frequent hikes over the swinging bridge, and the accompanying 'spookings' by the camp's resident ghost, the 69 boys and 30 girls who attended the two week-long sessions held at Camp Easter Seal, near Milford, participated in other group activities with their newly-found policemen and policewomen pals.

They fished. They swam. They learned archery. They played games of softball and kick soccer. They went on canoe outings at Pawnee Lake. They had crafts classes. They learned to load and shoot rifles. They had contests for everything, including the neatest cabin.

But most of all, they enjoyed themselves, and got to know each other on a more relaxed level, away from the high-tension atmosphere associated with police-community work in the city

The camps were established four years ago for just such purposes, according to Sgt. Gary Hoffman, the acting camp director

"We're hoping it helps (police-community relations) in the long run," Hoffman said.

Home Extension Clubs To Hold State Meeting

Mrs. Martin Muchow of Sioux Falls, S. C., president of the National Extension Homemakers Council, will be the keynote speaker at the annual meeting of the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs to be held Wednesday through Friday, June 27-29, at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Mrs. Muchow, Speaker

"Looking In — Reaching Out" will be the theme of the three-day event at which Mrs. David Jones of Stapleton, president of the state council, will preside.

Dr. John Adams, director of the Agricultural Extension Service at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, also will present a major address during the conference.

A variety of educational learnshops will be held, including one which will stress women's responsibilities in highway safety and the county's role in promoting safe driving. "Super Safe Drivers — Listen Today, Live Tomorrow," will be the topic of the panel discussion featuring addresses by John Sullivan, director of the Nebraska Department of Motor Vehicles; Sgt. Frank Manning of the Nebraska State Patrol; Tom Ryan, chief of the Accident Records Bureau; and Mrs. Earl High, president of Nebraska Women for Highway Safety.

"Women as Lawmakers" will be the topic of another discussion conducted by State Sen. Shirley Marsh. She will deal with the aims and needs of women lawmakers and the methods of getting more women involved in the legislative process.

Calista Hughes, director of the State Office of Comprehensive Health Planning; and David Dropst, assistant director for community affairs, will direct the learnshop concerning "The Health Care System of Rural Nebraska."

The agenda for the annual meeting also includes election of new officers, the naming of scholarship recipients, and other topical learnshops concerned with membership and organization of extension clubs, terrariums, weaving, candle making, new fibers, fabrics, and fashion trends; the metric system; quilting; the physically limited and library service, investment, and progress and programs at the UNL College of Home Economics.

Opening lead - ace of hearts.

Let's say you're in four spades and West leads the ace of hearts, East following low. West shifts to the deuce of clubs, which you win with the ace. How should you play the hand?

As you have bid hearts, it is certain that West's opening lead of the ace is a singleton, and if you were to try a spade finesse at this point and it lost, there would be a substantial danger of West's putting partner on lead with a club and thus negotiating a heart ruff.

Since you can afford a trump loser, a better idea is to forgo the trump finesse and lead the ace and another trump instead. However, this merely improves your chances without actually assuring them. In the actual case you would go down one anyhow.

West would win the second trump lead, play a club to partner's king, and East would deliver the telling blow by returning a heart.

To make the contract, you must lead the king of diamonds at trick three and on it discard the eight of clubs. This entry-destroying play permits West to score a diamond trick he is not entitled to make, in return for a club trick he is entitled to make. It also has the important incidental effect of severing a crucial line of communication between West and East.

West takes the king of diamonds with the ace, but is helpless. Whatever he returns, you win and play the ace and another trump. West winds up scoring three tricks — a spade, a heart and a diamond — and you wind up scoring a game. Your evasive tactics pay a handsome dividend.

Friends Flood Pool

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are installing a swimming pool, and already everyone we know is asking if they can come over and use it when it's finished. We are not rich. We both work and are paying for this pool with our hard-earned money.

If we wanted to swim with a bunch of people, we'd go to a public pool. We are putting in our own because we want our privacy.

How do we tell these people that we aren't looking for company after our pool is completed? Or worse yet, what do we say to the neighbors when they come knocking at our door in their swimsuits?

HIS AND HERS

DEAR H AND H: People with pools must have rules, but there's no point in alienating everyone before your pool is finished. Wait until it's ready for use, and alienate them one by one.

DEAR ABBY: Women are getting so nervy now with the Women's Lib thing, they are asking men to dance.

I had a harrowing experience the other night when my wife and I were at a public dance hall. She left me to go to the powder room, and you wouldn't believe the number of klutzes who moved in on me, asking me to dance with them. I am 68, bald and no bargain, but that didn't seem to make any difference.

Next time I'll go to the powder room with my wife. Phooey on equal rights!

BALDY

DEAR BALDY: Don't "phooey" so fast. Why shouldn't women be able to ask men to dance? Some men would be delighted. And those who aren't can always say no.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are legally separated, and I am expecting next month. The doctor says it will be twins. (I already have one child.)

I want to send out birth announcements. Is this proper under the circumstances? If it is, should I write in my name only where it says, "Parents" on the announcement? Or should I include his too?

I hadn't even thought it might not be proper until my family raised the question. They all have different opinions.

EXPECTING TWINS

DEAR EXPECTING: Under the circumstances, forego the printed announcements. Write a personal note to your close friends to inform them of the double-header.

DEAR ABBY: I am still chafing over the doctor who wrote that he resents his parents for allowing him to be circumcised as an infant.

Point one: What mature person would harbor such resentment for a temporary discomfort that he can't even remember? And point two: If he knew his business, he would know that cervical cancer among women whose husbands are circumcised is far less frequent than among the others.

Scottsbluff Budget Proposal Trimmed

Scottsbluff (UPI) — The Scottsbluff City Council Tuesday night cut an estimated $92,000 from the city's proposed budget of more than $1.3 million.

The council acted in considering the first portions of the budget, including allocations for the police, fire, administrative and engineering departments. However, all city employes were given a 10% across-the-board pay increase.

The council rejected a college incentive program for policemen which would have given them pay raises for additional acquired college credit hours.

The council approved a $107,000 property acquisition proposal for the purchase of land north of City Hall for engineering department facilities. The council also approved a $30,000 expansion request for property south of City Hall.

Omaha Police Seek Attacker Of 9-Year-Old

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Police searched Wednesday for a man accused of raping a 9-year-old Omaha girl.

The child told police the man accosted her as she was walking from her home to a nearby playground. The assailant carried her to some nearby railroad tracks where she was assaulted, police said.

The girl was treated and released from a local hospital.

Police said the suspect is a white male of average height, about 22 years old, with long brown hair.

Church Sets Celebration

Lincoln Star Special

Daykin — Special services Sunday will mark the 85th anniversary of St. John Lutheran Church at Daykin.

Dr. Archie L. Madsen of Denver, Colo., president of the Central District of the American Lutheran Church and a native of Hampton, Neb., will be guest speaker at the 10 a.m. worship service.

Liturgist for the morning service will be Pastor H. C. Damm of Hastings, who served the Daykin congregation from 1947 to 1953. A resident of the Good Samaritan Village in Hastings, he is assistant chaplain there.

Following a congregational dinner at noon, a 2:30 p.m. service is planned, conducted by Pastor John W. Adix of Evergreen, Colo., pastor of the Daykin church from 1962 until 1965.

St. John's Church has become known as "The Church of the Lighted Cross," because of a neon cross installed as a memorial to Melvin Drees, who died from wounds received during World War II.

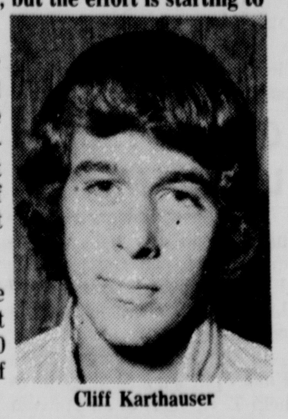
Karthauser Brothers Enjoy Running

Cliff and Gary Karthauser are brothers who enjoy running and excel at it.

The son of Clete and Lila Karthauser have been training for quite a few years, but the effort is starting to pay off.



Cliff Karthauser

Cliff, who will be a junior at Nebraska Wesleyan and holds two school distance records, ran a marathon Sunday for the first time. He not only won easily over a field of 28 other runners, but also set a record.

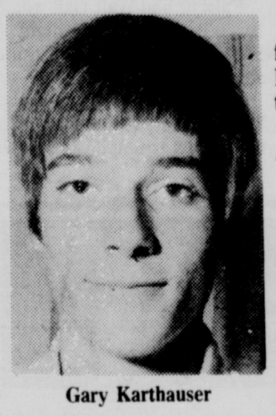
The Plainsman won the Longest Day Marathon at Brookings, S. D., in 2:31:34.0 to break the old mark of 2:37:23.6.

To train for that race Cliff ran from 10 to 20 miles daily for three weeks after taking off a week as soon as classes ended. He runs all year in competing in cross country, indoor and outdoor track and some summer track meets.

After running a 4:32.0 mile and 9:35.0 two-mile at Lincoln Northeast, Cliff has lowered his times to 4:24.0 in the mile and 9:10.0 in the two-mile.

The 9:10.0 two-mile time is a NWU school record and his 14:32.0 three-mile is also a school record.

While Cliff is mainly a distance runner, 13-year-old Gary has found the middle distances to his liking. In the 440 and 880 Gary is unbeaten and set a national record in the 880 for his age group on May 20.



Gary Karthauser

Gary, who will be a freshman at Dawes Junior High, ran a 2:05.5 to better the old mark of 2:07.3 at an AAU Junior Olympics meet at Omaha Burke Stadium.

Last year Gary had the fastest time nationally for his age group in the 880 and holds records at various Midwest AAU track meets in the 440, 880, long and high jumps.

Although Gary and Cliff don't usually work out together because one is a distance runner and the other a middle distance runner, they do jog together sometimes and Cliff sets up Gary's track workouts.

Because Gary is so good for his age group and no one can keep up with him even in practice, he must run against time and this is where Cliff comes in handy in setting up workouts.

Both are now training for the Sioux Valley Classic to be held July 21, in Sioux City, Iowa, and should fare well in stiff competition from five states.

NFL Players React Angrily To Drug Report

New York (AP) — National Football League players are reacting angrily to their being publicly indicted as a group because of unsubtantiated stories that a few of them may be dealing in drugs.

NFL players polled by The Associated Press unanimously denied knowing of any players dealing in drugs but acknowledged that, if the reports are true, it would be a black market against the game and that guilty players should be dealt with severely.

And a spot check of players shows they're generally opposed to a congressional proposal which singles them out for urinalysis tests as a means of combatting reported drug use around the league, a plan which the NFL Players Association terms "an outrage" and "irresponsible."

A story in The New York Times last week said at least four NFL stars suspected of dealing heavily in cocaine and hashish are under surveillance by narcotics officials.

"I was kind of shocked when I first heard about it," said Jake Kupp of the New Orleans Saints.

"The thing that upsets us is the way it's being handled. Instead of just coming out and saying these four people are the ones involved, I think it puts us all on the spot. There are about 1,200 players in the league, but everyone is pointing the finger at you and asking if you are one of the four."

Reggie Rucker of the New England Patriots agreed. "Ninety-nine per cent of the football players are getting a bad rap," he said, adding he doesn't think the reports will bother them because "they know they're clean."

But he's concerned about the players' image presented to youngsters who idolize athletes, an image which might be tarnished. Rucker said his 6-year-old son, who has received counseling against drugs at home and in school, heard of the nest stories of alleged drug use and asked: "Daddy, do all football players take drugs before they play?"

Rucker said the few players in recent years who have been found guilty of drug possession — usually marijuana — "have learned their lesson and are trying to forget, but people won't let them . . . The league is not composed of all drug and pill freaks."

In general, the players and owners interviewed acknowledged that some players could be involved with drugs — but they emphasized the number is insignificant but that the matter is magnified because they are athletes.

"If just four out of 1,222 are involved, then we're way ahead of society," said Norm Van Brocklin, coach of the Atlanta Falcons.

"There must be 1,400 players in the NFL," added the St. Louis Cardinals' Dan Dierdorf, "and I guess when you have that many people, you are bound to find one or two that would stoop to something like drugs."

"If the stories about players dealing are true," said Dierdorf's teammate, Ernie McMillan, "well, it would be a terrible thing for football because the public would start looking at all the players the same way. I've already had people walk up to me and ask if I had ever dealt in drugs.

"But I guess there are people in all walks of life that would do such things. No matter who you are — a football players or a businessman — the same weaknesses and temptations are there . . . No matter if the stories are true or not," McMillan said, "it's a bad thing for the game and all the players."

Randy Rasmussen of the New York Jets called it "a damned shame to condemn 99 per cent of the players because of one per cent. It's a black mark against football, implicating everybody."

But what if the reports are true? "Then I hope they catch those four guys, lock them up and throw away the key," said Rassmussen, one of the many NFL players who, on their own or as part of organizations, address youth groups in the off-season, counseling against drugs.

Said Brian Dowling of the Patriots: "I think being in a profession that's so much in the public eye, the situation gets more attention. I'm sure it happens in other professions.

"Even if it's true, four out of a thousand players isn't that many. It is unfortunate if trafficking is involved. They should be prosecuted if guilty, as anyone should be. It has nothing really to do with pro football."

Dowling said he "wouldn't be surprised if it's true. NO profession is completely sanctified . . . Every profession has its good side and bad. Because they're football players, and if any are guilty, it shouldn't be a big deal."

New England teammate Charlie Gogolak, a lawyer as well as a player, concurred. If the reports were true, he said, "I wouldn't be happy with the fact that this happened to people I was associated with in the NFL. But I wouldn't consider it a reflection on all the players not involved or on the sport itself.

"No 100 per cent cleanliness can be expected in any walk of life. As an attorney, I realize that not every attorney, or every newsman, is entirely clean or has moral standards that you would be proud of. Most do, but a certain percentage in anything don't.

"I feel it would be unfortunate that football players were involved if it's true," Gogolak continued. "But you'd have to live with it. I wouldn't feel any less proud of the game.

"Let the law take it's course. Don't blow it any bigger than it is. When you're in a high-publicity situation, it makes a lot of noise. Football players can stray, too. I realize they have a responsibility to uphold the highest standards and image — but so do politicans."

Roger Staubach of the Dallas Cowboys, a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and one of the sport's most outspoken critics of drugs, said it's "a tragedy that anyone deals in it. Any person who does that is weak to me. They're just walking around sticking knives in people.

"As far as the NFL is concerned, as a player it hurts me to think other players would do this. Even if it's not true, the adverse publicity has to be very bad — especially for young people. If it's discovered who's involved, he must be punsihed."

The House Commerce Investigations subcommittee recommended last month to NFL Commissioner Peter Rozelle that the league insitute a system of urine testing of players as one way of deterring potential drug use. It is expected Rozelle will present the idea, along with several others, to the league's team owners at their meeting next week.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said the group's position is that the suggestion of such testing of athletes "is an absolute outrage . . . a basic tenet of our society is that people are innocent until there is some proof of wrongdoing. To single out professional athletes with unsupported allegations of this type is simply irresponsible."

Rassmussen said he'd "be so mad if somebody came up to me after a game to take a test, I don't know what my reaction would be. I'd probably tell him to get lost . . . although the way we're so up after a game I'd probably use some different words."

Pitcher Bats For White Sox

. . . CALIFORNIA FALLS, 8-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Chicago White Sox became the first American League team to allow one of its pitchers to bat this season. It didn't help — but it didn't hurt, either, as the White Sox clobbered the California Angels 8-3 Wednesday.

The White Sox got six of their runs in the seventh inning with Pat Kelly's first home run of the season, a three-run shot, highlighting the uprising against Angels' fireballer Nolan Ryan and reliever Steve Barber.

In another American League afternoon game, Cleveland nipped Detroit 7-6. In the lone National League afternoon contest, Cincinnati beat San Francisco 7-5.

Since the AL instituted its "designated hitter" rule this season, the first of three years of experimentation, no pitcher had batted during the regular season.

Cy Acosta became the first one, with less than spectacular results. He struck out, ending the eighth inning.

George Hendrick, who had three homers and a game-winning single Tuesday night for the Indians, lined a single down the left field line in the last of the ninth, scoring Buddy Bell from second and give Cleveland another victory.

The Tigers had tied the game 6-6 in the top of the ninth on Mickey Stanley's run-scoring triple and Cleveland pitcher Jerry Johnson's ensuing wild pitch. Detroit reliever Mike Strahler walked Bell to open the Indians ninth. He moved to second on a walk, then came home on Hendrick's hit. Tony Perez and Hal King hit home runs, highlighting a six-run fourth inning that carried the Reds past the Giants. Dan Driessen started Cincinnati's rally with an infield single off starter Elias Sosa and capped it with a run-scoring single off reliever Don Carrithers.

Perez delivered Driessen with a two-run homer. King's homer came with two out and increased the lead to 3-1. Dave Concepcion's triple and a single by pitcher Don Gullett made it 4-1. Sosa was lifted after singles by Pete Rose and Joe Morgan scored another run.

Bobby Bonds started the Giants' scoring with a leadoff homer in the first. The Giants added three runs in the fourth and Tito Fuentes homered in the fifth.

Hyland's Edge Raised To 13

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

With only one day remaining in the three-day Lincoln City Women's Golf Tournament, it looks like Jean Hyland has won her 12th title and her second in a row.

Mrs. Hyland carded an 86 over Holmes Golf Course Wednesday to give her a two-day total of 167 and a 13-stroke leads. She had an 81 on the Lincoln Country Club course Tuesday.

Sally Roper, who trailed Mrs. Hyland by six strokes after Tuesday's round, fell to a 93 at Holmes, but still held a one-stroke margin over Mary Liggett in third place with a 181.

Last year, Mrs. Hyland held a 35-stroke cushion at the end of the tournament when the tourney was a four-day affair. But this year, the traditional four-day test was shortened to three. The tournament will conclude Thursday at Hillcrest Country Club.

Mrs. Hyland failed to get a birdie on the front nine, but saved four pars. Her first par came on the 295-yard par 4 No. 4 after she was five-over after the first three. She then parred No. 6 after taking a bogey on No. 5, collected another par on No. 7, but bogeyed No. 8 before parring the 173-yard par 4 No. 9 for a seven-over-par 47 on the front side.

Then on the back nine, Mrs. Hyland played the first three holes in par and birdied the 363-yard par 5 No. 13 and parred No. 14 before collecting a bogey on No. 15. She finished the last three holes in par for an even-par 39 to give her an eighteen hole total of 86 — seven over par.

Ficke Stretches Lead In Boys' Junior Golf

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Jerry Ficke picked up two strokes over Tom Taylor at Pioneer Golf Course Wednesday to stretch his lead to three in the championship flight of the Boys' Junior City Golf Tournament after the third day of the four-day tourney.

After the first day, Ficke held a four-stroke lead over Taylor and a three-stroke margin over Ed O'Shea, but carded an 81 at the Hillcrest Country Club Tuesday while Taylor fired a 78 and O'Shea an 80.

Ficke picked up one stroke on the second hole at Pioneer after Taylor bogeyed, then picked up two more on the par 4, 420 yard No. 3 when Taylor collected a double-bogey.

Taylor had another double-bogey on No. 6, a 475-yard par 5, but got those two-strokes back when he birdied No. 8, 348-yards, par 4, and took a bogey on No. 9 when Ficke collected a double-bogey.

On the back nine, Taylor cut Ficke's lead to three with a birdie on No. 11, but lost that on No. 12 when he bogeyed. Ficke then gave that stroke back to him by bogeying No. 13, but then parred the 437-yard par 4 No. 15 while Taylor bogeyed.

No. 16 gave Ficke a little trouble as he collected a bogey and Taylor parred to gain a stroke from Ficke as the pair finished with a two-over par 37 for Ficke and a one-over 36 for Taylor. Taylor played the front nine in 42 for 78 over the par 71 course while Ficke's frontside of 39 combined with 37 on the back for a 76.

Huskers' Teel Fires Par 70

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — Hometown favorites Henry DeLozier and Danny Edwards tied with Florida's Gary Koch with three under par 67 in the first round of the 76th annual NCAA golf championships Wednesday.

Florida grabbed a one shot lead over Oklahoma State in team competition.

Despite the two 67s, Oklahoma State's four low men ran up an aggregate of four under par 276, one behind the Gator team paced by Koch and Andy Bean, who had a 68.

Gary Teel fired a 36-34-70 to pace the University of Nebraska to a first-day aggregate of 290.

Rick Schultz (35-37-72), Dan Bahensky (36-37-73) and Larry Schmidt (37-38-75) teamed with Teel for the Nebraska score.

The other member of the Huskers' contingent, Steve King, shot a 36-42-78 but only the top four scores on each team were counted.

Nebraska trails tournament-leading Florida by 11 strokes after the first-day scores.

Houston was even par at 280 and Texas, winner the last two years, was four over at 284.

The field of 239 players will be cut to the low 15 teams and low 50 individuals, plus ties and anyone within 10 shots of the lead, after Thursday's round.

Tied with Bean at 68 were Jimmy Ellis of Georgia Southern and Bill Rogers of Houston.

Ben Crenshaw of Texas, the pre-tournament favorite to win a third straight individual title, was in a crowd of 11 at 69.

British Government Intervenes

LONDON (AP) — The British government intervened Wednesday night in the dispute which threatens the Wimbledon tennis tournament.

Eldon Griffiths, minister of sport, met with Cliff Drysdale, leader of a large group of militant men stars boycotting the tourney, and with Allan Hayman, president of the International Lawn Tennis Federation.

The Federation is behind the suspension of Yugoslav star Nikki Pilic. His banishment caused the men to walk out.

Griffiths met with both men for about an hour each. He then told newsmen, "The government has no wish to interfere with the day-to-day running of any sport.

"But disruption of the Wimbledon championships would disappoint tens of thousands of spectators and tens of millions of television viewers.

Ticket System To Face Test?

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

You think you've got your football tickets all sewn up?

Or you've given up trying to get any?

Well, Big Red fan, start sweating a little, or, as the case may be, sit forward on the edge of your chair.

The Go Big Red football ticket slot machine may be overhauled, if a University of Nebraska professor of dentistry has his way.

Prof. David L. Kutsch has asked that Lancaster District Court issue a writ of mandamus requiring NU season and individual football tickets to be sold on a "first come, first served basis."

The peition for the writ claims that admission to NU football games has become a matter of forced contribution to booster clubs or "knowing somebody."

The petition alleges that NU ticket manager James Pittenger has failed to perform his "public duty, trust, responsibility and obligation by not treating members of the public on a fair and impartial basis."

The petition goes on to claim large blocks of tickets are sold to "select individuals, corporations or other associations."

Further, the petition alleges, favoritism has been shown to members of booster clubs such as the Touchdown Club, in which membership costs $100.

If that attack on the status quo isn't enough, it's rumored that Prof. Kutsch is going to file a suit in U.S. District Court soon, this time claiming discrimination on being sold only one ticket, while a married professor would get two.

If you turned to the sports page first this morning and, due to sleepiness, are having trouble finding the words to express your reaction, three possible comments are provided for your benefit.

A . . . It' about time.

B . . . Must be a troublemaker.

C . . . Haw, haw, here they go again.

Fremont Downs First National

Fremont scored eight runs in the sixth inning to extend a 2-0 lead and defeat First National Bank of Lincoln, 11-9, Tuesday night at Sherman Field in Junior Legion baseball action.

In the midget game, Mark Harrison limited the Fremont midgets to five hits to pace First Mid America to a 7-1 triumph.

Kuzma, Bryant Help Lincoln A's

Firth — The Lincoln Athletics used the four-hit pitching of Al Kuzma and John Bryant and the bat of Ross Stephenson for a 6-1 semi-pro baseball victory over Firth here Tuesday night.

Kuzma pitched the first seven innings and Bryant finished up. Stephenson was 3- for -5 with two runs batted in. The win boosted the Lincoln team's record to 6-2.

O'Doherty Leads Big Eight ERAs

Kansas City, Mo. — Nebraska's Dennis O'Doherty led the Big Eight in lowest earned run average, according to final conference baseball statistics.

O'Doherty allowed only two earned runs in 23 innings for an ERA of 0.78.

Husker teammate Bob Munson was edged by three percentage points by Oklahoma's Kenny King in the race for the Big Eight batting title. King hit .424, Munson .421.

Hearing Slated On Race Time

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Maryland Racing Commission has scheduled a hearing for July 10 to review the running time of the 1973 Preakness as requested by Mrs. John Tweedy, owner of Triple Crown champion Secretariat.

After the Columbia Broadcasting System showed video tapes last Sunday which purported to prove Secretariat had broken Canonero's mark, Mrs. Tweedy formally requested a review.

J. Newton Brewer, the commission chairman, said Wednesday that Mrs. Tweedy and trainer Lucien Laurin had been invited to a hearing on July 10 at the CBS outlet in Baltimore, WMAR-TV. The tapes will be shown at the station's studio.

Hit in Ninth Topples Omaha

Omahe (AP) — Evansville right fielder Wilbur Howard hit a run-scoring single in the ninth inning to boost the Triplets to a 5-4 victory in the opener of a three-game American Association series in Omaha Tuesday night.

Evansville rallied for two runs in the last inning following a three-run eighth inning by the Royals.

NCAA Drug Tests May Start In Fall

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mandatory urinalysis tests for National Collegiate Athletic Association performers could be a reality by this fall, NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers

First, however, the NCAA must determine which drugs should be denied athletes and that research is under way now, Byers said.

The NCAA already is working with some member institutions on a voluntary urinalysis drug testing program.

Football Rivalries Result Of Players?

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The great rivalries of college football, says Texas Tech's Jim Carlen, are created by players, not fans, and intimacy is the key ingredient.

The most celebrated duels, contends Carlen, match kids who grew up together, clashed in high school, who were wooed by the same schools and recruiters.

They are backyard brawls: USC-UCLA, Alabama-Auburn, Oklahoma-Texas, Georgia Tech-Georgia, Pitt-Penn State, Michigan-Michigan State, Tennessee-Vanderbilt, to name a few.

"Fans talk about it but they don't play the game. They add to it. But it still comes back to the players. The reason there are so many upsets in the Southwest Conference is because everybody knows everybody else. Every game is a grudge battle," Carlen said.

"And the great rivalry between Oklahoma and Texas is not a battle between the states but because O.U. has a pile of Texas kids who want to prove they made the right choice by going to Oklahoma."

The Carlen theory emerged Wednesday during interviews with opposing coaches in the 13th Coaches All-America football game Saturday night in Tech's Jones Stadium. Carlen, host coach for the nationally televised contest, joined Auburn's Ralph "Shug" Jordan, the East coach, and Southern Cal's John McKay, the West coach, in discussing the tangibles and intangibles of football confrontations.

The three coaches guided their teams into bowl games last season and McKay's unbeaten Trojans won the mythical national championship.

McKay said he never explored "The Carlen Theory" on rivalries but added that "it could very well be true."

He said, however, he feels that the stature of a team can contribute to a rivalry—"We've become rivals for other teams because we've been pretty good."

Both he and Carlen pointed out the most notable exception to the Carlen "backyard theory"—the 47-year-old series between Southern Cal and Notre Dame.

"I guarantee you, our game with Notre Dame is a pretty big rivalry," he said, laughing.

He observed also that whether it's a "big" or a "little" rivalry, "if you lose, you still get fired."

Jordan, whose Tigers were 10-1 last year, agreed in part with Carlen on the intimacy-recruiting concept but he said there are other factors in great rivalries.

"Don't leave the coaches out," he chuckled. "They take a great deal of relish in beating another team. They get their hackles up for one another and it can affect the team."

The press, he added, contributes no small part: "Sometimes it's not Alabama vs. Auburn but Bryant vs. Jordan, not Oklahoma vs. Texas but Fairbanks vs. Royal, not USC vs. Notre Dame but McKay vs. Parseghian."

Perhaps, he suggested, "it's just a grand melee. There are a great many factors in the psychology that goes into preparation of such a game."

And then, flashing a big grin, he added, "Sometimes it even involves the psychiatric."

Royals Defeat Evansville, 10-4

Ovaha (AP) — Omaha scored seven runs in the fifth inning en route to a 10-4 American Association victory over Evansville Wednesday night.

The Royals were helped during the inning by two walks with the bases full and Jose Arcia's double with three men on.

Four Evansville pitchers saw action during the big inning.

Paul Pelz, 20-year-old right-hander, went the distance in his Omaha debut after weathering four Evansville hits and giving up a run in the first inning.

But the Triplets left the bases full and Jim Lyttle's eighth homer in the same inning tied it at 1-1.

Linda's Chief Withdrawn

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Neil Hellman, owner of Linda's Chief, said Wednesday night that his horse will not race against Secretariat and another top 3-year-old in a special 1⅛mile match race, proposed for Arlington Park June 30.

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press, Hellman said, "We will not race him at a mile and an eighth.

Hellman, when asked why he withdrew Linda's Chief, responded:

"The reason is that we feel that a mile-and-a-sixteenth is a better distance for him.

"They (Arlington track officials) called me this evening to tell me that the track had decided to run the race at a mile-and-an-eighth."

Hellman earlier had told Schenectady television station WRGB, "It's an invitational race and they have the prerogative to name the distance.

"They're going to talk to my trainer Thursday morning. My feeling is that he (Linda's Chief) shouldn't run, and I spoke to my trainer this evening and his feeling is that he shouldn't run, too."

Asked if there was any possibility the horse would be in the race at the 1⅛-mile distance, Hellman replied flatly, "No."

WHAT DOES IT ALL MEAN?

We think it means something we should have known all along — reading the daily newspaper is a part of growing up. The habit of newspaper reading is formed during childhood years. And the ambitious, well-educated teenagers who are active newspaper readers now will likely be more-active readers as adults.

Teenagers, like adults, choose newspapers as the best way to find out. That's a good thing for marketers to keep in mind.

New Farm Bill Praised By Rep. Thone

Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., says the new farm bill headed for enactment by the Congress will assure "plentiful food for consumers and a floor on prices for farmers."

"The aptly named Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act has a target price concept," the congressman explained in his weekly news letter.

"The proposed legislation would set a floor on prices for each crop. If the farmer can get that price, or a higher one, in the open market, the government will pay him nothing. If the farmer can't obtain a price equal to the target, he can still sell his crop in the open market. The government will pay him only the difference between what he received and the target price."

The level of price floors differs in the version passed by the Senate and the version being sent to the floor by the House Agriculture Committee, although the measures otherwise are basically the same, Thone said.

For wheat, the floor figure in the House is $2.05; in the Senate, $2.28. Corn is $1.38 in the House and $1.53 in the Senate.

Whatever the final target prices are, they will be tied to farm production costs, Thone said.

"If the costs of operating a farm go up or down, the target prices will be increased or decreased."

Another change in the bill lowers maximum payments to one producer from $55,000 to $20,000.

The set-aside programs will be continued, with flexibility allowed the department of agriculture to help prevent overproduction from year to year.

Audubon Official Hits Mid-State Project

The controversial Mid-State Reclamation Project recently came under fire at the national convention of the Audubon Society held in Denver.

Executive Vice-President Charles Callison of the society attacked statements by Robert Lowry of Cairo, chairman of the board of the Mid-State Irrigation District. Lowry blamed the reclamation project's difficulties on "emotional environmentalists" trying "to protect a few birds at the expense of agriculture and the farmer."

Callison said that Lowry and associates are trying to frighten farmers into signing water petitions for a "project that is unsound and unnecessary." He said "such scare tactics are emotionalism in its purest form."

Callison said that the people who become the most emotional about a federal project are the ones "whose jobs depend on it, or who stand to make a killing on construction at taxpayer's expense."

Callison said that the Mid-State project would waste more water than it saves through evaporation and seepage from reservoirs and canals. He added that substituting an artificial mechanism for the "natural and efficient recharge system of the broad Platte channel is certain to increase the cost of irrigation water, besides wasting it."

Callison noted that the five Audubon chapters in Nebraska support the position of the National Audubon Society, which he feels promotes prosperous agriculture as well as the wildlife and recreational resources of the Platte River.

Source Of Report Puzzles Packer

FREMONT, Neb. (AP)—The manager of the George Hormel meat packing plant in Fremont says the source of charges that the plant is unsanitary "is a mystery" to him.

Manager William Hunter said his only source of information about the secret Department of Agriculture study has been the news media. He said he does not know where the Department, and Rep. John Melcher D-Mont., got their information.

"We have visited with the man in charge of USDA inspection for the state of Nebraska, as well as our local USDA representatives, and they do not know of any report that has inferred that our operation here is deficient in any way as far as sanitary conditions are concerned.

"We are under inspection by the USDA 100 per cent of the time and all products going out of this plant carry their seal of approval that this food or product is fit for human consumption," Hunter said.

Boomer Bids For TAR Post

Dave Boomer of Lincoln, vice chairman of the Nebraska Teenage Republicans, Wednesday announced his candidacy for state chairman of the organization.

The chairman will be elected at the TAR state convention in Lincoln June 22-24.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Father's Day was such a whopping success we can hardly wait for the next one.

Father's Day, O glorious day. It was started Year 1910. The founder was Mrs. John Bruce Dodd.

The books don't say why Mrs. Dodd decided to honor fathers.

I imagine she just went to her father and said: "Happy Father's Day! Can I borrow a dollar?"

Most of us fathers today were not fathers when the day was invented. We had no vote. We simply inherit the day.

Noblesse oblige.

I said: "I want to resign." The children said: "Let's have a big party for Father. And invite all our friends."

☆☆☆☆

"Father, can I have a dollar? It's for a Father's Day present!"

Father is a handy thing to have around a house. Unlimited source of dollars. Handy for zipping small girls up the back. Bringer of presents. Part-time chauffeur. The place we lay our complaints.

"He hit me first!" "I did not!" "He did so!"

☆☆☆☆

The best thing about Father's Day is it doesn't cost anything. You get a present from the store. You put it on father's charge account.

You borrow a quarter from father. You buy him a card. "Dear Old Dad." "Not that old," I said. Who makes up these cards? A writer who decided to ruin your day.

☆☆☆☆

I did not see who was the Father of the Year. Maybe they've quit electing them. First National Father was General Douglas McArthur. He was elected in 1942.

Father's Day really doesn't get the ink that Mother's Day gets.

Mother's Day is emotional. Mom's Apple Pie. The hand that rocks the cradle.

Father's Day is more a matter of reminding us that we have a father. And being sure he is still useful. Testing his batteries.

"Father, can I have a new bike?"

☆☆☆☆

One Father's Day I got an electric spinner that shined your shoes. I went in and turned it on. I let it shine one pair of shoes. Then I changed shoes and let it shine my other pair.

After I stopped, the youngest boy wound the cord around the spinner and turned it on.

☆☆☆☆

Well, it started a splendid fire. Everybody screamed: "Fire! Fire!" I shouted: "Don't throw water on it, it's electrical!" The mother said: "They have extinguishers at school." I said: "That's a mile away for heaven's sake!"

A repairman in the street brought an extinguisher from his truck and put it out.

I went back to polishing my shoes with an old bathtowel. Everybody said: "One good thing about it. It's good exercise for you."

☆☆☆☆

Mother's Day was a big event. Mothers are big participants in such a day. They don't wait to be surprised by their presents.

They go out and buy them. Thus the day is as happy as they can make it.

The Mother says: "And I charged it. So you don't have to pay for it until next month."

We count this as one of our blessings.

TO THE PUBLIC:

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be commenced at 2:00 p.m. on Tuesday, June 26, 1973 in the Commissioners Hearing Room of the County-City Building, 555 South 10th, Lincoln, Nebraska, to consider a proposal to supplement the previously adopted budget statement for the General Fund of Lancaster County by adding thereto the sum of $75,000.00 required to meet current expenses. The Lancaster County Board of Commissioners has found that an emergency exists in that because of unforeseen circumstances, the revenue of the current fiscal year for said fund is insufficient to meet the costs of purchasing property for the Juvenile Attention Center, and that a reduction in the previously adopted budget of expenditures therefor would result in curtailment of the operation thereof.

The summary of the originally adopted budget previously published is as follows:

	Actual Expense Current Year 7-1-71 to 6-30-72	Ensuing Year 7-1-72 to 6-30-73 Proposed	Adopted
Total Budget of Expenditures	3,314,078.13	4,113,860.00	4,113,860.00

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecasts For Thursday

A mark or scar on the head or face serves as an identifying signature for those born under Aries. The Gemini person often can be "found out" by use of hands, by left-handedness or by being ambidextrous. Each of the zodiacal signs is associated with a specific part of the body: Aries with the head, Taurus the throat, Gemini the arms and hands, Cancer is related to the breasts, Leo with the back and heart, Virgo with the intestines, Libra with the kidneys, Scorpio with the genitals, Sagittarius with the thighs, Capricorn relates to the knees, aquarius the legs and Pisces the feet.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid rushing. Take special care in traffic. Steer clear of electrical objects which are in need of repair. Check details. Get rid of safety hazards. Be aware of message, correspondence. Get views on record and refuse to be quoted by secondhand source.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Much that occurs is slow. But you are building contacts, preparing for a brighter future. One who is careless causes you to review the past. Friendly member of opposite sex could hold superficial views.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be ready to change your mind. Creative thinking could lead to revision, review. Don't permit pride to cause you to stick to "lost cause." Accent progress. Deal with Virgo. Pisces persons. Money prospect is brighter than in recent past.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You learn. You put knowledge to use. You gain greater understanding of family. Your views are sought by those in positions of authority. Prestige, which may have faded, makes vigorous return. Be confident.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't add more pressure to yourself. Strive for simplicity, not complication. Pisces, Virgo persons play prominent roles. Member of opposite sex could be saving one thing, doing another. Remain alert.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What appears a setback could boomerang in your favor. Know it and avoid needless depression. Let older individual express view. If you disagree, do so in diplomatic manner. It may be necessary to make intelligent concession.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): One who was a partner, close associate could be harboring resentment. Protect your interests. Be sure legal counsel is up to date. Finish rather than initiate project. Get rid of unnecessary burden. Relative is confused.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Avoid commitment to long-range money program. You can do best if you allow yourself greater freedom of choice. Don't tie up assets. Opportunity could soon arise which requires quick decision, funds.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be seeing through a kind of romantic haze. Get through layers of pretense. See persons as they actually exist. The truth can make you strong. Strive to be familiar with basic issues. Ignore frills.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Relative may be doing something behind your back. This need not be malicious. But, whatever the motive, it is best to clear the air. Frank discussion is in order. Cancer individual could play key role.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are compensated for accomplishment of special task. Accept what you have earned. Avoid extravagant gesture. Be methodical about budget, financial prospects. Check inventory. Leo, Scorpio could be in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Young person may have expensive tastes. Learn to say "No." Give full play to your own creative urge. Make necessary changes. Be analytical. Find reasons for recent happenings. Member of opposite sex is involved.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are versatile, have sense of comedy, are a natural entertainer. You often take on too many tasks at once. You draw to you many born under Cancer and Capricorn. This month, June, is one of your most important in 1973. In August, you meet people, get started on new project and romance will play a more important role in your life.

DKQ knows that getting 5% interest from a tax-free municipal bond could be like getting 7 to 10½% from a taxable investment, depending upon your income.

It's not what you make that's important. It's what you get to keep. A 5% municipal bond still yields 5% after federal taxes. To equal this 5% tax-free rate, a savings institution would have to pay you taxable interest of 7.81% if your net taxable income is between $24,000 and $28,000. Add state income tax, and the figure would have to be even higher. Locate your income bracket, in the box below, and see what municipal bonds could do for you.

If your taxable income on a joint return is:	A 6% certificate of deposit at a savings institution would net you, after federal taxes:	A 5% tax-exempt municipal bond would net you, after taxes:	To equal a tax-free 5% municipal bond rate, a savings institution would have to pay this much taxable interest:
$16,000 to $20,000	4.32%	5.00%	6.94%
$20,000 to $24,000	4.08%	5.00%	7.35%
$24,000 to $28,000	3.84%	5.00%	7.81%
$28,000 to $32,000	3.66%	5.00%	8.20%
$32,000 to $36,000	3.48%	5.00%	8.62%
$36,000 to $40,000	3.30%	5.00%	9.09%
$40,000 to $44,000	3.12%	5.00%	9.62%
$44,000 to $52,000	3.00%	5.00%	10.00%
$52,000 to $64,000	2.82%	5.00%	10.64%

If you already have an adequate savings program, then tax-free municipal bonds may be the next step for you. High quality municipal bonds have a high degree of safety, because they are backed by the taxing power of the municipality. And they're a worthwhile investment, because they provide municipalities with the money they need for schools, roads, libraries and other community services. Market Slightly Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market poked slightly ahead Wednesday in slow trading as investors seemed content to sit on the sidelines and let the market wander aimlessly.

The market, which closed on the upswing Tuesday, opened stronger Wednesday slid backwards and then picked up again in the afternoon.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials picked up 3.16 points 6aa rytday to close at 884.71. Advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange led decliners 753 to 607 in the 1,758 issues changing hands.

Volume totaled a scant 10.60 million shares.

Some analysts felt the market's quiet posture was partly in response to the postponement of the Watergate hearings. Invyaifdz had some good news: the improvement in the U.S. dollar abroad, the narrowing of the United States' "basic" balance of payments deficit in the first quarter and the summit meetings going on in Washington.

"The market is aimlessly wandering and meandering over the countryside," said Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp. "The market is not in the mood to be crowded by anything. It's tired of being pushed and prodded."

Although the Dow picked up over six points Tuesday and over three Wednesday the market was still substantially oversold, analysts said. The Dow had skidded almost 52 points in the four prior sessions.

The broad-based NYSE index of some 1,500 common stocks closed up 0.24 at 54.96.

Greyhound was the most-active issue on the Big Board, closing down ⅛ at 13⅞. A 114,900-share block was traded at 13½, off ½. Arlen Realty Division was runnerup, up ¼ at 5, a 141,800-share block was traded at 4¾, unchanged.

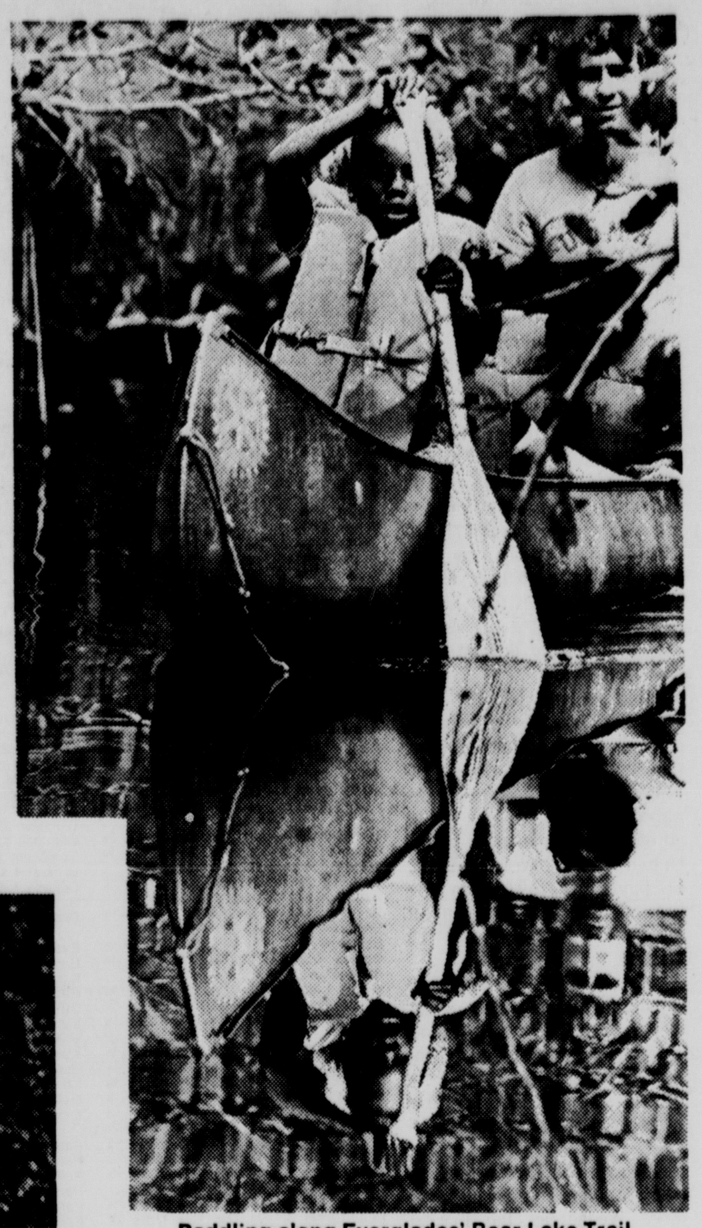
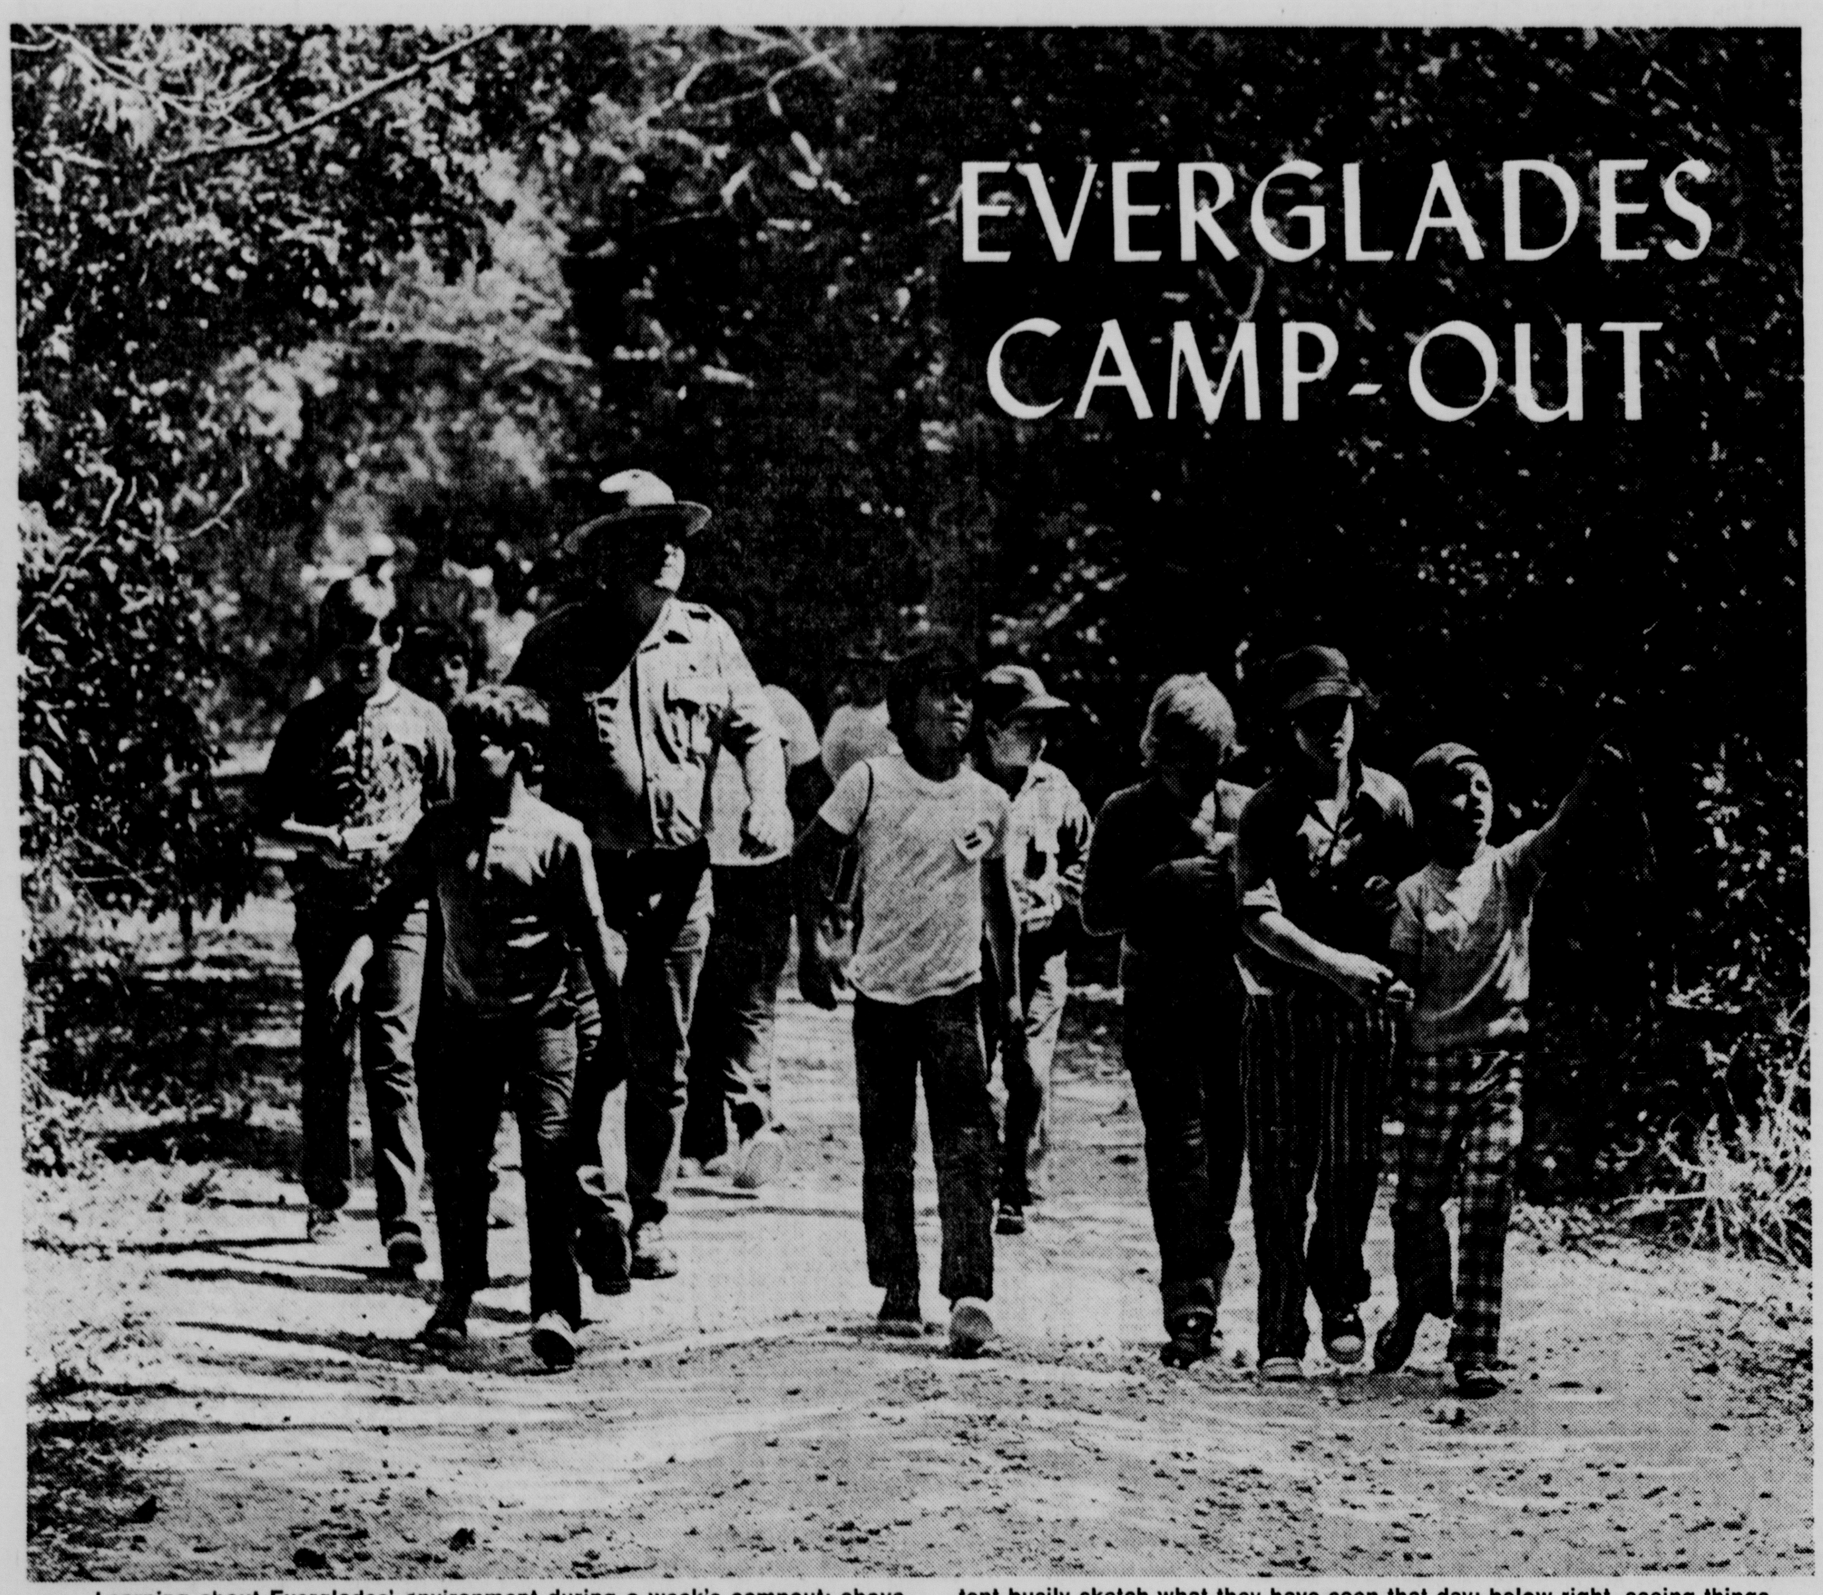
Park Ranger Bruce McHenry checks that perfect hot dog for Xavier Moore.

Gulls are friendly subjects for nature study.



Paddling along Everglades' Bear Lake Trail.

EVERGLADES CAMP-OUT



Learning about Everglades' environment during a week's campout: above, Park Ranger McHenry leads eager group on hike: below left, students in tent busily sketch what they have seen that day; below right, seeing things in natural setting is more fun than studying them in classroom or books.

They were really going to school for 16 hours a day but it didn't hurt. Being pioneers in the wilderness was a far more thrilling adventure than learning about it in class for these 31 fifth graders from Bright Elementary School, Hialeah, Fla., who camped out for a week in Everglades National Park.

They were the first to try a new program, sponsored jointly by the Dade County school system and Everglades National Park, which aims to teach children about the 1-million-acre wilderness through "total immersion" in it. That included one unplanned immersion when someone fell out of a canoe starting out on a trip along the Bear Lake Trail —soon forgotten in the excitement of gliding along the green forested waterways, catching sight of a rare Florida crocodile, blue herons and indigo snakes.

The 10-year-olds lived in a camp of eight tents pitched by the shore of Florida Bay, near Flamingo, and were under the tutelage of some of their own teachers and a group of Park Rangers.

It's a question of maturity.

A lot of people don't buy U.S. Savings Bonds because they think it takes them 10 years to mature. Take another look. The old green Bond ain't what it used to be. Now Bonds mature in less than 6 years.

That's one reason Bonds are so popular nowadays. They're simple to buy, and one of the surest ways to build a nest egg for something (or someone) special.

U.S. Savings Bonds. Maturity at 5 years, 10 months. If you don't want to use that money right away, there's a 10-year extension privilege. Either way, you'll find that Bonds mature at just the right age for you.

Take stock in America.

Bonds mature in less than six years.

Now E Bonds pay 5½% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Lower Platte South Nixes Bids On Dam

The executive committee of the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District (NRD) Wednesday night voted to reject the bids received in the sale of Dam 27C, Upper Salt Project, near Kramer.

The high bid on May 29 was $15,200. NRD General Manager Hal L. Schroeder said the value of the land had been appraised as high as $40,000 and a slow as $10,000, depending on its intended use.

The executive committee agreed that the NRD should not develop further the land or the lake on it, and should consider putting it up for sale again in a year or two.

The committee's recommendation to reject the May 29 bids now goes to the 68 members of the Lower Platte South board of directors, which must make the final decision to accept or reject the bids.

In other business, the committee approved a budget for the NRD of $1,244,400 for its fiscal year beginning July 1, 1973.

Budget committee chairman Paul Amen said $154,900 allocated for operating expenses represents 13% of the total budget. Of the total, $1,089,500 was earmarked for lands and construction projects.

Amen said the proposed budget raises the general manager's salary from $24,000 annually to $25,200, "exactly a 5% increase." The assistant manager's salary would be raised from $9,000 yearly to $10,000 effective July 1, and to $10,500 a month later.

Further, the salary for the administrative assistant would be increased from $7,500 to $7,800 annually.

Amen said, "It's amazing that our figures have been as close as they have been" in the current budget for operating expenses. Many of the proposed budget figures are lower than last year's.

For project costs, Amen said, "It appears that the heavy expenditure is going to be in Lancaster County this year."

Schroeder said most of the planned projects deal with bank stabilization to prevent erosion of soil in waterways, the main source of water pollution in the NRD.

Some of the projects will take two to three years to complete, Amen said, but the committee committed funds for them in the proposed budget for fiscal 1974.

If cost overruns become apparent, the committee agreed that some projects could be delayed; for one, the easement for a bank stabilization project at Dea Man's Run on the university east campus.

The budget now goes to the full NRD board for its approval. Amen said there will be a public hearing on the budget the week of August 6; then county taxing authorities will determine the mill levy. The budget deadline is August 15.

In other action, the executive committee took a low bid of $189,000 by Cole Construction Co. of Lincoln for a channel bank stabilization project at Dead Man's Run, 56th & Holdrege. Engineer's estimates of construction costs had been $158,000.

Scribner Boy, 3, Dies Of Injuries

OMAHA, Neb.(AP)—A 3-year-old Scribner boy has died in an Omaha hospital from head injuries suffered Tuesday in a two-car collision on a county road four miles south of Snyder.

He was James Kienbaum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nile Kienbaum of Scribner.

Seven other persons were injured including the boy's mother and two sisters but all were listed in fair to good condition.

Burning Roast Damages Home

A fire Wednesday evening caused "considerable" damage to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry G. Shafer, 2906 Plymouth, said Dist. Fire Chief Eugene Fenner.

Fenner said the Shafers had gone to a Little Chiefs baseball game and left a roast cooking in the oven. The roast caught on fire, he said, and when the Shafers returned home, the house was full of smoke.

There was "considerable" damage to the oven and smoke damage to the entire house, Fenner said.

Fire Destroys Barn, Hog Unit Near Ogallala

OGALLALA, Neb. (AP)—A fire about seven miles southwest of Ogallala destroyed a barn and a hog shelter on the Elvin, Kleist farm.

Although no exact cause of the fire has been given, Kleist said that he thought is was probably caused by faulty wiring.

No official loss estimate was given, but Kleist said he thought the losses would probably total more than 2,000 dollars.

Fattest Woman Dies

MACEIO, Brazil (AP) — Inocencia Colatino de Lira, a Brazilian once billed as the fattest woman in the world — 486 pounds — died recently in Palmeira dos Indios. The bereaved husband, who had to sell his farm to keep her in food, said after her death: "She was like a bottomless pit."

Before you buy a new car, do your homework. Today's lesson is subtraction.

Datsun 1200	28.7 miles per gallon (mpg)	Datsun 1200	28.7 mpg
Vega 2300	21.5 mpg	VW Sedan 11	23.6 mpg
Datsun 1200	28.7 mpg	Datsun 1200	28.7 mpg
Mazda RX-3	13.5 mpg	Capri Coupe	21.6 mpg
Datsun 1200	28.7 mpg	Datsun 1200	28.7 mpg
Pinto Sedan	21.4 mpg	Ferrari 365 GTB	6.3 mpg

All mileage figures are from the Environmental Protection Agency's recent test findings. The Datsun 1200 delivered the highest gas mileage of all cars sold in the United States.

Datsun 1200. The more you subtract, the more it adds up.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 6-21
